THE WEATHER.

U. S. Department of Agriculture,
Weather Bureau.
Toledo, O., June 6, 1892.

The weather over the entire country is warm and generally fair. Rains reported are local and are falling in North and South Dakota and on the South Atlantic coast.

There is a storm central over South Dakota of very slight energy, which will probably cause light local showers over this section during the next 36 hours.

Forecast for Toledo and vicinity for 36 hours—Fair followed by light showers to-night or to-morrow.

There's danger in a cough—more than ever when your blood is "bad." It makes things easy for Consumption. But there's a cure for it in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. A positive cure—not only for Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma and all lingering Coughs, but for Consumption itself in all its earlier stages. It's reasonable. All these diseases depend on tainted blood. Consumption is simply Lung-scrofula. And for every form of scrofula and blood-taint, the "Discovery" is a certain remedy. It's so certain, that its makers guarantee it to benefit or cure, in every case, or the money is refunded. With a medicine that is certain, this can be done.

There's a cure for Catarrh, too, no matter what you've been led to believe. If there isn't, in your case, you'll get $500 cash. It's a bona fide offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

They are willing to take the risk—you ought to be glad to take the medicine.

A GOOD OILER.

St. Marys, O., June 6.—(Special)—One of the most important oil wells that has been completed around here for some time was drilled in on the Fredericks farm, four miles southwest of this city, by the Home Oil Co., of New Bremen, yesterday afternoon.

The well commenced flowing when only a short distance in the sand, and operations had to be checked so that tankage could be provided for.

It is thought that the well will make a 75-barrel producer, which is considered a rich strike, since the territory in which it was drilled has thus far been prolific of gas only, and the completion of an oiler here has caused no little surprise and excitement.

COMMENCEMENT.

Wapakoneta, O., June 6.—(Special)—Saturday afternoon the graduation exercises of country school district of Auglaize county were held in the Union school hall in this city, which was packed. The audience represented every school district in the county, and the graduates under the new school law admits them to any high school in the county. Twelve following received diplomas: Cora Howell, of Pusheta; S. A. Plummer, of Goshen; Emma Ziegenbush, of Duchouquet; Edward Rodeheffer and Anna McCollough, of Washington; Fred Barrington and Nora Yingling, of St. Marys; Oral Johns, Lawrence Swink, Florence Slife, Emelia Baker and Frank Ashbacker, of Noble.

HILL MEN WON.

Massillon, O., June 6.—The main contest in the Stark county democratic primaries was for delegates to the county convention, which body elects delegates to the state convention, and the state convention delegates from Stark, Columbiana and Mahoning counties will choose the delegates from the Eighteenth district to the national convention.

The issue was squarely drawn between the Hill and Cleveland factions, and reliable returns have been received here that the Hill faction carries the county by a large majority.

SHELBY DEMOCRATS.

Wapakoneta, O., June 6.—(Special)—At the democratic mass convention of Shelby county, which was held at Sidney, the following delegates and alternates were selected to the state convention: Delegates, Dr. J. M. Carter, Alonzo Williams, Dr. J. W. Costalo, Dr. S. S. Good, R. B. Dill, C. E. McClure and Edward Wagner. Alternates, George Marshall, J. K. Cummings, Frank Hunter, Wm. Shine, John Burkhardt, jr., C. C. Rusey and O. A. Waucop.

KILLED IN A WRECK.

Louisville, June 6.—Near South Carrollton the regular northbound passenger through on the Nashville Owensboro railroad, collided with an excursion train Sunday, filled with negroes going south. Four were killed outright and many were injured, several dangerously.

ON A SERIOUS CHARGE.

St. Marys, O., June 6.—(Special)—J. W. Lortor, jr., of Salem township, Shelby county, was arrested on a delicate charge preferred by Miss Laura Kelly, yesterday afternoon. Lortor is held under a $300 bond.

McKinley on the Ground and Foraker Lost in the Shuffle—All the News from the Greatest Republican Scramble of the Age.

Minneapolis, June 6.—For the tenth time in the history of the United States the representatives of that element of the American people that is known as the republican party are assembling for the purpose of placing in the field their representatives for the presidency and vice-presidency.

It was in 1856 in the Quaker city that the first body of republicans came together for this purpose. Primaries were practically unknown in those days, and consequently the gathering that named as its standard bearers Fremont and Dayton was little more than a mass meeting.

Chicago was the scene of the convention of 1860, and which sent out to the country the magic names of Lincoln and Hamlin; then came the Baltimore convention of '64, which named Lincoln and Johnson, that in Chicago which nominated Grant and Colfax, that of Philadelphia in '72 with Grant and Wilson, the Cincinnati gathering of '76 which sent Hayes and Wheeler to the White House, the memorable convention in Chicago when, after a fight of unprecedented bitterness, Garfield and Arthur were made the nominees of the party; once more in Chicago in 1884 when the magnetic man from Maine with that gallant warrior, John A. Logan, were named only to go down in defeat, and finally again in Chicago in '88 when the present incumbent was chosen.

To-day the great northwest, represented by one of its leading cities, a city which, although young, is already famed for its wealth, industry, energy and the hospitality of its citizens, welcomes with open arms and joyous hearts the delegates to the tenth convention of the republican party.

So far at least as present indications are concerned—and a large majority of both delegates and visitors are on the ground—the Flour city, with the assistance of her twin sister, St. Paul, and of the numerous summer resorts in her immediate vicinity, has fully redeemed the promise to provide ample accommodations for one and all.

Everybody who has so far come in has been housed and will be fed, and still there is room for plenty more.

At the West hotel are quartered the delegations from Arkansas, Connecticut, Idaho, Indiana, a portion of Iowa, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, a portion of New York, including all the delegates-at-large from that state, North Dakota, a portion of Ohio, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and California.

The Nicollet hotel is entertaining a majority of the delegations from Colorado, Ohio and South Dakota, as well as the delegations from Delaware, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Vermont. In ample quarters at the Holmes hotel are the balance of the Iowa and New York delegations, as well as those from Alabama, Georgia, Montana, Vermont, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

The Louisiana delegation is divided between the Victoria and the St. James, while the latter house also entertains the second half of the South Dakotans, and the Victoria gives shelter to the Colorado, Kentucky, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas contingents.

At the Brunswick are the Mississippi, West Virginia and South Carolina delegations. The Floridans are at the Windom. The four delegates from the District of Columbia have the Beaufort all to themselves so far as delegates are concerned.

The sturdy men of Michigan have gone over to the Ryan, of St. Paul, while the delegates from Alaska, Arizona, Maryland, Minnesota, Nevada, and Virginia are quartered about in private houses and buildings. The Baltimore club has preempted the Lake Park hotel.

Five hundred visitors from Iowa have quarters on Tenth street, and an equally large delegation from Cincinnati with their bands have rooms in the New York Life building. Some fifteen hundred people have quarters in the hotels at Lake Minnetonka, while many of the railroads have fitted up their side tracks with sleeping cars which will be occupied by the various clubs.

Some 500 of the newspaper correspondents are quartered in the New York Life building, where they are being taken care of in better shape than at any previous convention, while half as many are quartered around at the various hotels.

The number of strangers in town cannot be estimated, although people accustomed to sizing up big gatherings, put the total at anywhere from 75,000 to 100,000.

And yet Minneapolis, with its long avenues and wide roadways and spacious sidewalks does not appear to be overcrowded in the strict application of the term. Everything is in readiness for the opening of the convention. The work of decoration has been completed, and the Flour City looks like a bride of spring. Every building and every private residence in the city from the 12-story sky scrapers to the little wooden shanty stores across the river, from the mansions of the milling millionaires to the humble one and two-story homes of the working people, all display flags and bunting, in the aggregate to such an enormous extent that it seems as though all the available decorating material had been called into use for the occasion. To-night the great amphitheater of the exposition building will be formally dedicated for the purpose of the convention by an immense meeting at which there will be appropriate musical exercises together with an oration by Gov. McKinley.

HARRISON'S AVAILABILITY

The Administration Points With Pride to Raum and Porter.

Minneapolis, June 6.—Hon. George C. Gorham, ex-secretary of the United States senate, to a representative of the United Press this morning, summed up the situation from his point of view as follows:

"So far as Mr. Blaine's attitude toward this contest is concerned, there is no disposition on the part of Harrison's friends to discuss it. The delegates in the republican party will do their own thinking on the subject, and no effort is being made in the Indiana headquarters to give any direction to the discussion.

"I find my old California friends endeavoring to determine which of the candidates is safest for the party at large. This state is well known to be very partial towards Mr. Blaine. Old time friends of his on the delegation think, however, that it is not the vote of California alone that should be considered. They want to know who can command the most strength in the states in which the real battle is to be fought.

"Without knowing the preference of all the delegates, it would somewhat surprise me if Mr. Harrison should receive less than one-half of the delegation when the time comes for them to announce their vite.

"The resignation of Mr. Blaine has had the effect of bringing to Mr. Harrison's support three of the delegates from Massachusetts who up to that time were said to favor the nomination of Mr. Blaine.

"The friends of the president have no difficulty in securing the concession from all delegates that his merits as a public official have a larger quantity of availability than any president has contributed to the party for 20 years.

"They don't claim that he is a good fellow, in the sense of calling everybody by his first name, but he has not given the party anything in his course to defend, and that men who care about success in their states feel that his nomination would strengthen them in their local contests more than that of any other candidate.

"A favorite topic of discussion is the relative strength of Mr. Harrison and Mr. Blaine as is shown by the supreme test of elections in which they were respectively and respinsible leaders.

"A comparison of the returns shows that Mr. Harrison made gains for the party, where Mr. Blaine made losses.

"Mr. Blaine was beaten by Mr. Cleveland; Mr. Harrison defeated Cleveland.

"There is no record of Mr. Harrison's which will in any manner embarrass the party if he is the nominee. So far as the present relative strength of the two men is concerned Mr. Harrison is solid and genuine.

"It is known, so far as it is possible in advance to know, that if the convention were to vote to-day he would receive more than 500 votes."

IT IS NARROWING DOWN.

Less Talk About Dark Horses as the Convention Approaches.

Minneapolis, June 6.—There is less talk about dark horses this morning than there was yesterday. The Harrison men are deprecating the discussion or suggestion of any other name than that of their candidate on the ground that dark horse talk, if it means anything at all, means that the side indulging in it is not as sure of the success of its candidate as it professes to be.

However, there was quite a good deal of McKinley talk indulged in yesterday and last night, and the question was repeatedly asked by delegates from many widely separated states, whether Foraker and his friends would favor the governor. Foraker himself preferred to say nothing, but many of his friends were inclined to answer the query in the affirmative. Next to McKinley the name of Allison and Rusk have been heard almost as frequently as that of Alger.

THE DARK HORSES

In the Event of a Failure to Nominate McKinley Will be a Factor.

Minneapolis, June 6.—The name most frequently mentioned among the list of dark horses is that of Wm. McKinley, jr., of Ohio. Inquiries are already being made as to his ability to receive the solid support of the Ohio delegation in case the great leaders turn to a dark horse for a candidate. The sensational quarrels of Ohio republicans are proverbial, and the vital question is, "Would Foraker and his friends favor McKinley?" This question was answered in the affirmative last night by many of Foraker's friends, but the ex-governor himself maintains a discreet silence. It is rumored that John Sherman, the great Ohio senator, would be Foraker's favorite in case the Buckeye delegation were called upon to furnish a candidate, as Foraker would almost certainly succeed Sherman in the senate should the latter be called to the presidency on the 4th of March. Sherman, too, has hosts of friends in other state delegations; but he is no more popular than the young Napoleon of protection, as the special indorsement which is to be given to the McKinley bill makes its author a peculiarly fitting candidate just at this time.

The name of Alger is still the watchword of the Michigan delegation, and his name will certainly be presented to the convention. Most of the delegates from his state are for Blaine, for second choice, but the general's closest friends are rather cherishing the hope that recent developments may be such that the Blaine people will rally to Alger as second choice.

There is no denial on the part of certain of the Iowa delegates that they are longing for an occasion which will justify the presentation of Senator Allison as the candidate of the Hawkeye state, and the gravity of the political situation in their state adds to the general availability of their candidate.

Senator Shelby Cullom, of Illinois; Hon. Jere Rusk, of Wisconsin, and Whitelaw Reid, of New York, are also freely discussed, and it is believed each would receive the votes of his state delegation in case of th eretirement of both Harrison and Blaine. Cullom is the only one of these men on the ground, and he is a delegate-at-large from Illinois, and an avowed Harrison man. He is evidently sincere in his loyalty to the president, but he kept rather busy last evening denying the rumors of his candidacy, and insisting that Harrison must be the man.

STRAY COMMENT.

What Washington People Think of the Resignation.

Washington, June 6.—Col. Fellows (dem.), of New York, could see no other reason for Mr. Blaine's resignation than that he wanted the nomination. The action of the secretary, Mr. Fellows thought, would weaken him in some quarters. His general observation was that Mr. Blaine would be willing to take the nomination if tendered to him.

Just as Col. Fellows finished speaking a New York republican, Representative Curtis, came up and Mr. Fellows said to him, "What do you republicans mean?" Mr. Curtis responded: "It will take the nomination out of Indiana, but Blaine will not get it."

Representative Boatner (dem.), of Louisiana, said it means that Blaine is a straight out candidate for the nomination. It is the best thing that could happen for the democratic party.

Representative Bland (dem.), of Missouri, said he supposed it means war between Harrison and Blaine and others. It may result in the defeat of both, and in the nomination of some other candidate. It seems to be good policy for the republicans to name some other person than Blaine or Harrison. The resignation puts Mr. Blaine in the attitude of opposition to the nomination of President Harrison.

Representative Rockwell (dem.), of New York, said that the program for the last ten days was that Blaine should be kept out of the race up to this point, and that program had been made with his assent and assistance. He did not think that either Blaine or Harrison could be nominated. It had come to be a fight between the Harrison and the anti-Harrison people, and Mr. Blaine, he thought, would lend his assistance to Quay and Platt in the effort to defeat Mr. Harrison. Mr. Blaine felt that he had not been treated right by the president, and besides there was known to be a social feud between Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Blaine, that must have its effect on the secretary.

Representative Wilcox (dem.), of Connecticut, said he thought that Mr. Blaine had intended to be a candidate for some time. The contention between Harrison and Blaine was very close; but Mr. Blaine was now convinced he would be nominated; otherwise he would hardly have resigned. He did not think that Blaine would be as strong a candidate as Harrison. Blaine's course in declining to be a candidate in a written letter, and now resigning for the purpose of standing for the nomination, would be certain to give serious offense to Mr. Harrison and his friends, and also to some of Mr. Blaine's former friends who had committed themselves to other candidates after the publication of his letter.

Mr. Bryan (dem.), of Nebraska, thought the Blaine and Harrison forces would fight it out in the convention, and whichever was nominated, his chances of election would have been weakened.

Mr. Durborrow (dem.), of Chicago, said: "It looks like Blaine was out for it."

Mr. Cummings (dem.), of New York: "It settles the question. It means Blaine's nomination at Minneapolis, and the liveliest kind of a campaign."

Mr. McRae (dem.), of Arkansas, thought the letter was the culmination of bad blood.

Mr. Enloe (dem.), of Tennessee, thought that it meant Blaine's nomination. But Mr. Blaine (according to Mr. Enloe) "is carrying diplomacy to a point which in our section of the country would be called square lying." It was diplomacy like that practiced by Minister Egan.

Mr. Pierce (dem.), of Tennessee, was of the opinion that Mr. Blaine was sharp enough to see the hands of his opponents before he tendered his resignation.

Mr. O'Ferral (dem.), of Virginia, is confident that it means Blaine's nomination, and that nomination makes doubly sure the nomination, of which he never had the slightest doubt.

Nearly all of the democrats were of one mind, and that was expressed by the speaker, who said that the resignation meant war to the knife between the two administrations and the anti-administration factions.

PETTIGREW SCORES HARRISON.

Blaine Was Too Big a Man to Remain in the Cabinet.

Minneapolis, June 6.—Senator Pettigrew, of South Dakota, has arrived fresh from Washington, and is an enthusiastic admirer of James G. Blaine. His public utterances to-day have created little short of a sensation.

"I am not at all surprised," said he "at the resignation of Mr. Blaine from the Harrison cabinet. The only thing that seems at all singular to me is that a gentleman of Blaine's disposition should have so long remained in close and intimate association with such men as Miller and Tracy and Wanamaker.

"It was Mr. Harrison and his little advisers who strove to foment discord with poor, little insignificant Chile. It was Mr. Blaine who constantly bore the insults and slanders of his associates and their tools because he refused to lend himself to their jingo efforts for the renomination of their chief.

"You remember that Mr. Blaine was reported sick during the pendency of the Bering sea negotiations. I happen to be advised that Mr. Blaine was never better in health in his life than during that incident.

"But the president, with a small envy of the fame of his great secretary took the negotiations out of Mr. Blaine's hands, where it legitimately belonged. The secretary of state turned the entire matter over to his excellency of this excellent administration, but report was given out that the secretary of state was sick.

"Well, he was sick—sick of his company, sick of being insulted by his chief and the kitchen cabinet. Whatever excellence there has been in Mr. Harrison's administration is traceable to Mr. Blaine and Mr. Rusk. The mistakes and weaknesses that occasioned the political earthquake of 1890, belong by right to Mr. Harrison and his errand boys. He is the most signal example in history of a class president.

'I have no doubt as to the results. The Minneapolis convention of 1892 will honor itself by calling James G. Blaine to lead the republicans."

M'KINLEY AND BLAINE.

The Two Men Who Get a Boom in the Decorations.

Minneapolis, June 6.—Under a dome of blue, with 44 stars scattered very irregularly iver its surface, but all of them there, the tenth national republican convention will meet on Tuesday.

To-day the last touches of decoration were given to the convention hall. They are appropriate and effective. All the arrangements for the comfort and safety of the delegates and the public seem to be as nearly perfect as possible.

The pillars on each side of the platform are supported by natural eagles, with wheat and brown millet trimmings. The presiding officer's table has been specially carved by the pupils of the State Mechanical school. His chair is of carved oak, embellished with designs characteristic of the state. On the face of the galleries and underneath them, the shields of 44 states are emblazoned on American (?) tin supplied by the Tin Manufacturers' association of Cleveland, Ohio. The shield and eagle of the United States are displayed behind the chairman; to his right and left respectively are the twin mottoes: "Reciprocity" and "Protection," in gilt letters on a blue field with brown border.

A monster eagle of embossed tin surmounts the stairway by which the delegates enter. The 36 columns which now only support the roof, but which formerly held up the second floor, now removed, have been gilded and bronzed. Where the girders of the second floor were let in, the stars are skillfully covered by sheaves of wheat, oats, barley, flax and grasses, with bronze-colored banners as a background. Four handsome sets of 30-foot American figs are draped, one at the back of the chair, one on each side of the space set apart for the delegates and one in the rear of them.

The galleries are artistically hung with brown plush, and the hanging gallery, 15 feet from the roof, where the Chicago band is to discourse sweet music, is similarly draped in old gold. The roof and the skylights have been tinted in two delicate shades, picked out with stars to correspond to the states. Forty extra ventilators have been let into the roof and the amber-tinted light which falls through them gives a pleasing effect. The passage ways and platform will be covered, to deaden the sound of footsteps, with linen made of flax grown in Minnesota and woven in Minneapolis. At the end of the building, facing the chair, is displayed the time-honored banner of the Boston Home Market club, which has been in so many conventions, with its inscriptions:

"American wages for American workmen."

"American markets for the American people."

"Protection for American homes."

Nothing could be better than the arrangements made for the accommodation of the press to whom the best seats in the hall have practically been assigned. The delegates occupy a square to themselves in front of the chair, fenced in on each side by a wire screen. Oak opera chairs have been provided for their accommodation. The 10,000 spectators will be seated in two tiers extending all around them and also back of the platform.

Probably on no similar occasion has such elaborate care been taken to insure absolute safety. The convention hall is on the second floor of the exposition building.

The floor and galleries are also girded and trusses that probably every chair rests upon an independent support more than sufficient to uphold a ton weight. Over 30,000 feet of lumber have been used in making the changes in the hall for the purposes of the convention.

The number of exits is so great that in the event of a panic the building could be emptied in five minutes. There are 50 feet of clear space all around the main floor and 30 feet around the gallery, this outside the convention room.

Ventilation, acoustics, light and decoration are all admirable. Minneapolis has prepared a model convention hall.

BILL FOR BEN.

McKinley Comes Out for the Present Incumbent.

Minneapolis, June 6.—It is positively stated that Gov. McKinley, of Ohio, is to declare for Harrison. This information comes from Delegate George E. Baldwin from McKinley's own home town, Canton. To-day Mr. Baldwin gave out this statement of Gov. McKinley's intentions: "Gov. McKinley has authorized me to say that upon his arrival at Minneapolis he will enter the Harrison headquarters and become one of the most persistent workers for the president. It is Gov. McKinley's opinion that two-thirds of the delegation will support the president upon the first ballot, and that three-fifths of them are so pledged to support the president that they cannot by any possible intrigue be enticed away."

THE FIGHT IS FURIOUS.

Can Blaine Go Back on His February Letters.

Minneapolis, June 6.—The Harrison men are making a bitter fight to again renominate their chieftain, and they are injecting into the campaign so many personalities that it will take a long time to explain them away. The Harrison men have had Blaine's February letters printed on circulars and posted all over the city, and they are being scattered broadcast to-day.

The February letter reads as follows:

Washington, Feb. 6.

The Hon. J. S. Clarkson, Chairman of the Republican National Committee:

My Dear Sir—I am not a candidate for the presidency, and my name will not go before the republican national convention for nomination.

I make this announcement in due season.

To those who have tendered me their support I owe sincere thanks and am most grateful for their confidence.

They will, I am sure, make an earnest effort in the approaching contest which is rendered especially important by reason of the industrial and financial policies of the government being at stake.

The popular decision of these issues is of great moment and will be of far-reaching consequence. Very sincerely yours, JAMES G. BLAINE.

The Harrison men claim that Blaine, who wrecked the Garfield administration, and was responsible for the trade events of that time, cannot at his age afford to make a moral wreck out of himself by allowing his name to go before the convention.

BENJAMIN NOT DISTURBED.

He Seemed to Rejoice That He Had Got Clear of Blaine.

Washington, June 6.—Secretary Blaine's resignation was taken to the white house by his private secretary, Mr. Dent, who placed it in the hands of the president. This was a little before 1 o'clock, and within fifteen minutes after it was written.

Soon after reading it the president descended to the east room and held his usual Saturday afternoon reception to the public.

There were about 200 people present, no one of whom, as he shook the president's hand, could have told from his cool and collected manner that anything unusual had happened. Indeed, an official of the mansion said the president really seemed to be in better spirits than usual, and made felicitous replies to the greetings of his visitors.

The reception over, the president returned to his library and addressed a letter to Mr. Blaine, accepting his resignation. This was given to Private Secretary Halford, with instructions that it be delivered at once, and Mr. Halford thereupon took it over to Mr. Blaine's house and placed it in his hands. Thus the whole transaction did not consume more than an hour's time.

The news of the resignation of Secretary Blaine created a profound sensation at the capitol. The senate was not in session, but the house was in the throes of filibustering against the anti-options bill.

The effect of the reception of the United Press bulletin announcing the result was magical. Within two minutes the space in front of the desk was filled by a throng of representatives struggling to get a glimpse of the bit of yellow paper, which was snatched from one hand to another.

The speaker left the chair, temporarily delegating his duties to Representative Johnstone of South Carolina, and the latter soon found that he had assumed an almost impossible task in endeavoring to keep order in the house while it labored under the strange excitement. The clerks were calling the roll on some motion to take a recess until some unreasonable hour in the evening; but their voices could scarcely be heard over and above the hum of consultation and the tones of ejaculation. The effect was discouraging to the pending business.

"What does it mean?" was the question in every mouth. It did not take the democrats long to decide what view to take of the matter as to the initial stage. It means that Blaine is standing for the nomination, said one and all. But when it came to the secondary result—the effect on the democratic convention—there was, of course, a division of opinion. Said Representative Dockery of Missouri: "Fate is with us. It means that Blaine is the nominee; and Blaine can never be elected."

Representative McKinney, representing the New England democracy, his face fairly radiant: "We have got them. Blaine will be nominated, and of course we will nominate Cleveland. We beat Blaine once and can do it again."

Mr. Wilson (dem.) of West Virginia, remarked sententiously: "It means a rupture in the republican party, and that means democratic victory."

Secretary Elkins visited the white house at 3 p. m., and was asked what he thought of the political situation now that Secretary Blaine had left the cabinet. "So you want my opinion, do you? Well, I think that Harrison will certainly be nominated on the first ballot, without any serious opposition, either. That's all I care to say just at present."

M'KINLEY ON DECK

He Is Firmly for Harrison—Foraker Lost in the Shuffle.

Minneapolis, June 6.—The arrival this morning of Major McKinley was a source of considerable satisfaction to the other leaders of the president's cause, who have been awaiting his advice and counsel with some degree of impatience, and who expect to profit by his personal popularity and influence and his wide acquaintance among the delegates.

McKinley is relied upon to more than overcome whatever Ohio influence unfavorable to the president's interests that has or will be exercised by ex-Gov. Foraker, but this task he will not find a very difficult one for Foraker, for the first time since he wore a delegate badge to a national convention, seems to have been lost in the crowd.

So little has been seen of him and less heard.

It was not until long after midnight that the Ohio special reached the city, and Gov. McKinley had retired some time before, leaving explicit orders that he was not to be disturbed by politicians or anyone else. This morning, however, he was up early.

In reply to a question Gov. McKinley said: "I am for Harrison—firmly for Harrison. I have been for him and am for him still."

"What do you think the effect of Mr. Blaine's resignation will be in the convention?"

"Mr. Blaine's resignation has placed him in the field as a candidate. I think it will strengthen rather than weaken Mr. Harrison. I think Mr. Blaine's resignation at this time was a mistake. I think it has hurt him with the delegates and with the people. We could feel the effect of it as we came through the country. The announcement would daze a big crowd such as you have here, but where one man heard it, he had an opportunity to think quietly and I think the judgment of the people is that Mr. Blaine has made a mistake."

Gov. McKinley said he did not know enough to form a judgment of Mr. Harrison's strength. He did not know how the Ohio delegation was divided.

Concerning the permanent chairmanship, Gov. McKinley said: "I have heard nothing about the matter. I am not a candidate for the place. If I should be asked to serve I should do so."

The reporter asked the governor if there was any possibility that his name would come before the convention as a compromise.

"I am not in any sense a candidate," he said. "I will not even discuss it. I take it only two names will be presented to the convention and that, therefore, the nomination will be made on the first ballot."

Major McKinley was accompanied to Chicago by Delegate-at-Large William M. Hahn, nearly all the state officers and five carloads of prominent Buckeye republicans. Of the forty-six delegates from that state it is claimed that Harrison has 18 supporters, while Blaine has about 10 and 18 have so far expressed no preferences.

BEHIND BLAINE

Is the Ghost of Alger Stalking in the Distance.

Washington, June 6.—President Harrison's enemies at Minneapolis have but one scheme and one plan of attack. It is their purpose to defeat the president by the use of Blaine's name and then nominate Alger.

They reason that President Harrison would not accept the nomination after the convention had been stampeded to Blaine.

The Platt and Quay crowd still have faith that they can turn a majority of the delegates to Blaine, but they know that Mr. Blaine would not accept the nomination. When they have control of the convention they will swing it to Alger.

The above was outlined by a gentleman who had always been a pronounced Blaine man. It is fair to presume that President Harrison would do just what Quay and Platt expect him to do. He would most likely decline the nomination if it were first tendered to Blaine.

The president's friends are greatly encouraged by the courageous course of such gentlemen as Depew, Spooner, Allison, McKinley, Sherman, Cullom, and many others of almost equal prominence, who have rallied to his support. The president can well afford to contrast the character and motives of these gentlemen against those of his opponents.

A POLITICAL CORPSE.

Looking for His Own Coffin is James G. Blaine.

Minneapolis, June 6.—At a reception at the Indiana headquarters, Gen. Wallace made a speech, using such language as this:

Mr. Harrison has made the greatest president the United States has ever seen, and, in the frequent absence of a member of his cabinet, the ablest secretary of state. Mr. Blaine is a political corpse, which is now looking upon his own coffin.

THE CONVENTION HALL.

Pleasing but Not Elaborate Decorations on all Sides.

Minneapolis, June 6.—The convention hall, which is to be decorated by a national concert, is regarded as superior to any of past conventions—not only as to its acoustic qualities, but in the taste and elegance of its decorations. The adornment of the interior has just been completed, and to-day for the first time, a visit to the hall gives the visitor an accurate idea of what art and ingenuity have done to make the opening scenes of the convention a spectacle long to be remembered.

The decorations are in no sense elaborate, either in color on in drapery, but are dignified and becoming.

The national colors predominate, and arranged in pillars of bronze at points of vantage are shields on which are inscribed the cardinal principles of the national republican party. The open dome of the convention hall is supported by a series of columns, around which have been gathered in graceful folds chocolate-colored drapery, interwined with sheaves of Minnesota wheat.

The heavy timbers supporting the dome are painted in blue colors spangled with stars. The quadrilateral in which the delegation will sit is immediately in front of the chairman's platform, the latter, in fact, framing one side of it. The spaces between the central columns on either side have been festooned with the national colors, the folds of the flags divided and held in the talons of an American eagle.

In the rear of the platform the same decoration prevails, and on either side of it a column has been surrounded with old gold, displaying sheaves of wheat, and on which is perched an eagle. On the right of the platform has been placed a handsome upright urn of bronze.

Suspended from pillars, skirting the seats assigned to delegates, are the shields and banners of the following states:

As the chairman faces the audience the arms of the state of New York will be on the right hand, and next to the Empire state is the Pennsylvania motto. Then follow, to the right the arms from Vermont, Alabama, South Dakota, Missouri, Massachusetts, Illinois, Tennessee, Wisconsin, Michigan, Rhode Island, California North Dakota, Virginia, Maryland, Georgia, Maine, Indiana, and Ohio.

In the rear of the above the arms of other states and territories are exhibited as follows, commencing as before, on the chairman's right hand:

Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Arizona, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Texas, New Hampshire, District of Columbia, Oklahoma, New Mexico, West Virginia, South Carolina, Oregon, Washington, Wyoming, North Carolina, Utah, Nevada, Arkansas, Connecticut, and Florida.

The delegates-at-large, the national committee and the alternates will be readily recognizable. The seats assigned to spectators in the gallery will afford an excellent and satisfactory view of the proceedings of the convention, and there is considerable space between them. The arrangements in this regard surpass those of any other convention. Exits opening into large rooms and corridors of the huge building are found in every section, and roomy exits traverse the hall.

THE TWO FACTIONS.

Both Sides are Claiming to be Sure of Success.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 6.—Will the republican convention be simply a ratification meeting or a long-drawn bitter contest?

Can the president develop sufficient additional strength within the next two days to ensure his nomination on an early ballot, if not on the first, or can the man from Maine attack the enemy and rout it in but the preliminary skirmish of the battle?

These are the questions that are being asked and they are being answered according to the particular predilections of the delegates or visitors.

It was noticeable this morning that the friends of the administration seemed considerably more serene and confident than they did yesterday, although they profess that their mood has not changed a whit, and that it is the other people and not themselves that are worrying.

Nevertheless some of those who on Saturday and yesterday were expressing the view that it is going to be a close and bitter fight, and that in their private judgment that the president was not as strong as some of his managers believed, were free to say this morning that a later view of the situation hardly justified their previous doubts and fears and that they were now satisfied that calculating what it is certainly expected to accomplish between now and Thursday morning there was no need of any alarm on the part of the president's friends either here or elsewhere.

Very much the same tenor was the talk at the various places where the Blaine boom has an habitation. The cause of the ex-secretary it was declared, was stronger this morning than on Saturday night, although no figures would be given.

The Blaine people have a roster of the delegates with the way each man is expected to vote on the first ballot and a second roster showing how Harrison adherents, or many of them, at least, would be certain to turn when the proper time came.

They were not making these documents public property for the benefit of the opposition, however.

It was freely charged that the Harrison element was making many statements that were not founded on fact and laying claim that would certainly fail to be verified.

The statement of the Harrisonians for instance that they had been visited by several members of the Michigan delegation who had voluntarily promised to support the president's renomination, although counted as for Blaine, was pronounced a yarn out of the whole cloth, and the methods of Depew, New, Michener and others simply a gigantic game if bluff.

FIRST BALLOT OR NONE.

Harrison Reported to Have Taken a Strong Stand.

Minneapolis, June 6.—B. C. Marsh, of East St. Louis, a relative of Senator Cullom, of Illinois, is authority for the statement that President Harrison will withdraw his name from the convention unless he is nominated on the first ballot. Mr. Marsh is one of the republicans from southern Illinois in attendance upon the convention. He asserts that Senator Cullom showed him a letter from President Harrison which is as follows:

"Shelby M. Cullom, Grand Pacific Hotel, Chicago:

"Dear Sir—In case I am not nominated on the first ballot you will please withdraw my name from the convention.

Yours truly,

"BENJAMIN HARRISON."

NEW YORK'S SCHEMES.

Delegation to be Split and Blaine's Strength Weakened.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 6.—Inquiry around the headquarters of a number of the delegations which have arrived here shows that the changes as a result of the resignation from the cabinet of Mr. Blaine have not been so numerous as many persons had expected.

Indeed, in many delegations, the reports thus far do not indicate any change. In others, notably South Dakota and Texas, the changes have been marked. A great many delegates, however, are to be put in the doubtful list, and nothing can be predicted of these men, as they are awaiting the incoming of other delegates, perhaps a majority of whom have yet to arrive, before announcing themselves definitely.

The political chess board has been worked with skill and vigor.

One of the reports was to the effect that Depew and Hiscock had a scheme on foot by which the New York delegation was to be divided and strength taken from Mr. Blaine in the place where he needs it most. The rumor was that these two members of the Big Four, knowing the friendship of Mr. Warner Miller for Senator Sherman, intended to join forces with him provided he would agree to urge Senator Sherman's candidacy.

BLAINE ONLY SMILED,

And President Harrison Said He Had Nothing to Say.

Washington, June 6.—A reporter called at Mr. Blaine's residence here this afternoon after the correspondence had been made public and asked him if he would not supplement with an explanation.

Mr. Blaine smilingly, but deliberately replied: "The correspondence explains itself, and I have not a word to add to it."

The president was next called upon and asked if he was willing to say anything in regard to it. His reponse, though made with entire courtesy of tone and manner, was equally emphatic—"Nothing whatever."

Both the president and Mr. Blaine were seemingly in excellent spirits, and each of them, after declining to say anything for publication about the great event of the day or its effect upon the situation at Minneapolis, turned the conversation to other topics, with marked composure.

Mr. Blaine's appearance and manner and tone of voice, however, were especially noticeable as indicative of a feeling of relief and satisfaction, which made him even buoyantly cheerful.

Secretary Foster did not show any excitement over the news of Mr. Blaine's resignation; but soon after hearing it he was one of the most enthusiastic spectators at the Cincinnati-Washington base ball game. He declined positively to say anything for publication in regard to the political situation, just at present, but intimated that he might be more communicative at a future day. Attorney-General Miller and Secretary Noble also declined to be interviewed on the subject.

It is understood that the unusual reticence on the part of officers of the government is due to a suggestion from the white house, that the president preferred that federal officials should avoid public comment on the subject.

HARRISON CLAIMS

Five Hundred and Fifty of the Nine Hundred and Two Delegates.

Minneapolis, June 6.—There will be 902 delegates in the convention that will be called to order by Chairman Clarkson at 12 o'clock to-morrow noon. Of this number the Harrison managers officially announced last night that the chief will receive the votes of 550, while the Blaine leaders, though scorning to descend to details, maintain with lofty confidence that their candidate will receive at least three-fifths of the votes of the convention, and will be nominated on the first ballot.

Of course these counter claims cannot possibly both be accurate, and this very discrepancy leads many to suppose that both are widely extravagant in their assertions. Naturally, therefore, there is a feeling of great incredulity among those who are uncommitted to either candidate.

Of one thing only is the casual political observer sure, and that is that bitter feeling is being engendered in the ranks with every passing hour, and that with Blaine and Harrison in the field, the result of the tenth national republican convention—whatever that result may be—will leave behind it poignant feeling of hostility towards the successful candidate.

SENATOR INGALLS.

He is for the President First, Last and all the Time.

Minneapolis, June 6.—Senator Ingalls, who was one of yesterday's arrivals, did not affiliate with the Harrison leaders during the day. Nevertheless he is a Harrison man, and he does not hesitate to say so.

"I am for Harrison straight," said Mr. Ingalls. "And have been. The sentiment of the republicans of Kansas is for him. If it were known absolutely to the republican voters of Kansas that Mr. Blaine was out of the way, then surely would they be for the president. Mr. Harrison's administration justifies the compliments of republicans. He has a very great hold not only on the republicans, but upon the conservative and thoughtful people of the country at large. I think his administration is one of marked ability and power. In his dealings with domestic and foreign affairs he has displayed remarkable qualities of statesmanship."

Mr. Ingalls says he is not a candidate for either temporary or permanent chairmanship.

FASSETT AND PORTER.

The Men Who Represent the Two Republican Factions.

Minneapolis, June 6.—Mr. Platt confirmed to-day the announcement made in the United Press dispatches about the temporary chairmanship. He says New York will present the name of J. Sloat Fassett for temporary chairman. The Harrison men will present the name of Gen. Horace Porter.

CHAUNCEY AND YOUNG BLAINE

The Railroad President Embarrassed at the Unexpected Meeting.

Minneapolis, June 6.—The meeting of Chauncey M. Depew and Emmons Blaine on the field of battle was a picturesque sight. The field was the big dining room of the West hotel, and the meeting was witnessed by hundreds of the distinguished guests, scores of whom for the instant stopped knife, fork or coffee cup in mid air, scarcely breathing, as if half expecting to see young Mr. Blaine draw a revolver on the great ex-supporter of his father.

As a matter of fact, Emmons Blaine did not even attempt to draw a pistol, but Mr. Depew could scarcely have been more embarrassed if such a sensational move had really been made. The famous after-dinner orator and reputed most ready-tongued man in the world for interviewers actually stammered and reddened as he almost awkwardly extended his hand to young Blaine and caught himself inquiring for the welfare of Blaine, sr. Tom Platt, Depew's companion in the New York "Big Four," had been seated at the dining table with Emmons Blaine chatting at perfect ease, and seemed to greatly enjoy the discomfiture of the usually polished and serene railway magnate. After passing a few hasty and entirely irrelevant commonplaces, Mr. Depew excused himself and seemed glad to get away.

WYOMING WOMEN.

They Put in an Appearance as National Delegates.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 6.—The unique spectacle of lady delegates to a national convention is a matter of unceasing interest to-day to the old-time politicians of the republican party.

Mrs. G. C. Carleton, one of the two women delegates from Wyoming, was the recipient of numerous calls from the party leaders and received congratulations on the triumph of her sex in obtaining political recognition in the far west. Mrs. Carleton is of medium height and rather slender and is a decided brunette. Her voice and her musical enunciation are her greatest charm and few women are so well fitted for public speaking.

"For 20 years," said Mrs. Carleton, "Wyoming has enjoyed woman suffrage, and the women vote as naturally as they fulfill any of the duties of life—there has never been anything in the least disagreeable connected with going to the polls, the right being exercised freely, as a matter of course." Mrs. Carleton is quite up on the political situation and appears to know all that is going on.

PLATT IS HAPPY.

He Thinks Blaine Has a Walk-Away in the Convention.

New York, June 6.—The World this morning prints a communication from Minneapolis signed by Hon. Thomas C. Platt, in which he is reported as saying:

"The situation remains unchanged, except that it is growing more Blaineish all the time. Mr. Blaine's nomination on the first ballot is absolutely assured. Any other result is too improbable to be worth discussing.

"The truth is Mr. Blaine has won the hearts of nine-tenths of the republicans of the country. They love him and venerate him not only for what he has done, but for what he is capable of doing for his country in the future. He is the ideal, typical American.

"As for the president, feeling for him among his followers is at best only skin deep.

"I don't look for a stampede. The supporters of Mr. Hrrison are really compelled to stand up and be counted. Mr. Harrison's vote in the convention, however, will be considerable. Of his supporters over 140 are federal officeholders. Then there are hundreds of federal officials here working for the president who are not members of the convention. It is not surprising, therefore, that the president is able to hold together quite a following.

"It is really remarkable, and a strong tribute to the immediate popularity of Mr. Blaine, that the administration forces are as small as they are."

BLOWING THEIR HORNS.

Blaine Men Running the Campaign on Bluster.

Minneapolis, June 6—Notwithstanding their protestations of absolute confidence, the Blaineites started in this morning to make Rome howl, and they propose to keep up the noise until the balloting begins.

It is to be Blaine and nothing but Blaine so far as brass bands and badges and pictures and all other outside paraphernalia of a political campaign is concerned.

The idea is to impress the strangers from all parts of the country who are already here, or will come in to-day or to-morrow, with the idea that nobody but Blaine is being thought of or talked about.

The badges, pictures, music, etc., can be had for the asking, without money and without price.

Blaine clubs from a number of points in Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin and other states will bring reinforcements to a total of several thousand shouters during the day, and every man will be expected to use his lungs for all they are worth.

In one of the big buildings there are stored away 5,000 white plumes, as many showy uniforms, several wagon-loads of flags and banners and pictures of Blaine, and the outfit of a band of 61 pieces.

This afternoon, according to present plans, this stock in trade is to be turned loose on the streets for the benefit of the citizens and visitors already on the ground and of the new arrivals.

The whole aim and idea is to have such a gigantic howl, such an infernal din and racket, and to keep it up so long as to make people believe even against their own will and sober thought, that no such a man as Benjamin Harrison is being thought of or talked of, and that James G. Blaine has everything his own way.

If it is possible to accomplish a stampede by this kind of campaigning, the stampede is going to come.

But the president's advisers in the present crisis say they are preparing for any emergency of this kind. There cannot and will not and shall not, they say, be any stampede in the convention.

Presidents are not nominated nowadays by the clamor of a disorganized mob and the bluster of a few would-be leaders, nor is it either possible or probable that such methods can prevail against the personal influence or the wise and prudent councils of such men as Depew, McKinley, Mason and New, who have guided the party to success through many a storm.

Hence they say nobody will be either scared or deceived, no matter how great the din or appalling the noise.

A FINISH FIGHT.

The Man With the Olive Branch not Wanted.

Minneapolis, June 6.—(Special)—The Blaine tide sweeps remorselessly on. But the Harrison office holders have made a splendid rally since the demoralizing effect of Blaine's resignation struck them. All night the Harrison managers, New, Michener, Ramsdal, Whitfield, Goudy and Shiels, were busy repairing their lines, instilling courage into their supporters, doling out ammunition and generally strengthening their position. When the Sabbath sun rose over the prairie the alert Blaine boomers at the outposts reported the enemy heavily intrenched and evidently determined to live or die in the trenches.

The sight of the long line of white plumes nodding in the morning breeze and stretching far as the eye could reach and the echoes of the hurrahing of the plumed knight's followers as they advanced to the charge might awe some and make the hearts of the resident supporters stop beating, but the lieutenants stood beside them with uplifted swords to strike down those who flinched, and there was no alternative but to buckle their belts tighter, take a firmer grip on their rifles and face the on-moving yelling column like patriots whose lives and salaries depended upon their successful defense of the citadel.

The orders were to reserve their fire until they could see the whites of the eyes of the adversaries. Behind them they were assured stood a masked battery of grape and canister which would belch forth death and destruction when all else was lost and effectually cover their retreat. It was the battery of calumny and abuse that was to be turned loose as a last resort.

Sunday had a demoralizing effect on the republican politicians. Pleasure and ire were rampant. The gin mills and beer cellars and bar-rooms have been running full blast. The chimes of the church bells have grated upon the band music and the songs of the boomers, the hotel lobbies have been crowded with yelling men and the cabs and carriages have kept up a continued rattle as or a thousand spinning wheels carrying strangers, some sight seeing, some to disorderly resorts. There are only two sides to the convention so far, Harrison and anti-Harrison, or, perhaps more properly, Harrison and Blaine. Only here and there can be found a man with a weak voice and an olive branch vainly calling for peace. But his plaintive cry is not heeded. Frenzied men sweep him aside and declare with an oath that the fight is to a finish, whether the party is split or not.

ALGER IS OUT.

He Will be Secretary of War Under Blaine.

Minneapolis, June 6.—It was arranged to-day that Alger should not attempt to make the race for vice-president, but should be content with the war portfolio if Blaine is elected. Alger has, it is understood, acquiesced in the arrangement, although some of his Wolverine friends are kicking. They want Alger to run for something. It is money in their pockets. One of them said in disgust, when he saw the white Colorado badges, "Blaine and free silver," "if Alger would only start we would change the inscription on those badges so as to make them read 'Michigan is for Alger and free gold.'" Blaine himself put a stop to the attempt to place Alger second on the ticket. Gov. Foraker said that Blaine wanted Rusk, not Alger.

It is surprising how deadened the consciences of the Blaine boomers are. All the Parthian shafts of their adversaries about Blaine's treachery, the inconsistency of his course, etc., fall harmlessly at their feet. They say if Blaine is nominated all will be forgotten, success the world can forgive, but failure never. Blaine himself has staked his reputation, his career, his all on the turn of the card, and failure now would be irretrievable ruin. There is a great deal of talk of turning to a new man if the present deadly fight continues. Tom Platt is cold-blooded enough to do anything, but most of the boomers, who cared little about Blaine at first, but whose whole object was to beat Harrison, see the brutality of dumping Blaine at this juncture. Quay said: "We will nominate Blaine, no matter what comes. We have been charged with using Blaine's name simply as a club to kill off Harrison, and we intend to demonstrate to the country our fealty and loyalty to him. There will be no treachery in our ranks." Nevertheless it seems inevitable if the Harrison men continue the present bitter fight that party interests will demand a compromise candidate.

TO LAST A FULL WEEK.

Evidence That Balloting Will Not Occur Until Friday.

Minneapolis, June 6.—The balloting for candidates may be delayed until Friday by the eighty-two contested seats and by that time, unless the Blaine hurrah breaks down the Harrison opposition, if the present temperament continues, the feud will be so terrific that the party will be hopelessly disrupted and compromise will be the only salvation.

If it should come the Harrison leaning would be to McKinley, while the anti-Harrison strength would go to Sherman or Rusk. It is significant that the New York delegation practically decided on Blaine (that is the anti-Harrison portion) with Sherman as the alternate. Up to this time, however, no compromise is in it.

JERRY IS LOYAL.

He Will Not Allow His Name to be Used.

Washington, June 6.—In regard to the public statement that an effort had been made to induce Secretary Rusk to accept second place on the presidential ticket, he gave the following explanatory card to the press to-day:

"There is no truth in the statement whatever. My name cannot be used, either singly or in combination against the president and no friend of mine will suggest such use."

OHIO A FACTOR.

McKinley Looming Up Like a Dutch Barn in a Fog.

Minneapolis, June 6.—Since the arrival of Gov. McKinley this morning the dark horse talk has suddenly assumed great proportions, and the name of McKinley is on every tongue. A private letter from a prominent Ohio republican to the Harrison men received this morning said that there is a plan on foot to nominate McKinley if the issue should not be settled on the first ballot. The Indiana people went to Gov. McKinley this morning and asked him what he would do about the matter.

The governor assured them that if they wished he would rise in the convention and ask the delegates from Ohio not to vote for him. Notwithstanding this assurance, talk about McKinley is heard everywhere. The dark horse movement has brought out the other minor candidates again and the talk in political headquarters is "Blaine or Harrison on the first ballot or a darkhorse."

Senator Cullom has heard the mutterings of the storm and his lightning rod is in position. Word has gone among his friends that if Harrison is not nominated on the first ballot he would like to have Illinois votes thrown to him on the second. Out of this probably arose the story that Senator Cullom had a letter in his pocket from the president authorizing the withdrawal of his name on the second ballot. The Allison and Rusk booms gathered strength and even the Alger boom was galvanized into something like activity.

ALGER'S POLE IS STILL UP.

He Will Remain in the Race to Save His Entrance Fee.

Minneapolis, June 6.—The Michigan delegation held a secret meeting this morning to determine whether they would present Alger's name or withdraw it. Yesterday the announcement was made by Senator Stockbridge that Alger's name had been withdrawn. This was the verdict of the Michigan delegates who were here.

But Mr. Alger was not satisfied with this. Besides, the friends of Mr. Blaine made up their minds this morning that the result of the first ballot might be so close that it would be safer to have other candidates. So the meeting this morning decided to present Alger's name and Mr. Duffield will place him in nomination.

Senator Stockbridge said to a United Press reporter: "I did say yesterday that Mr. Alger's name would be withdrawn, but I have found that the delegates settle these things.

"There was a meeting of the full delegation, and it was decided unanimously to present Alger's name.

"The chief object in doing so is to show the country that Michigan is for Alger. Then we think the vote will be so close that a dark horse may come in, and it may be ours. You see Gen. Alger deserves this support at the hands of Michigan. He has been very liberal. He went down to Indianapolis after the nomination four years ago and contributed $20,000 to the campaign.

"After Gen. Alger, our delegation is divided. Mr. Harrison will get about seven and Mr. Blaine the rest. Gen. Alger will get the full vote of the delegation on first ballot."

NEW YORK IN CAUCUS.

The Empire State is Not Exposing Its Hand to the Public.

Minneapolis, June 6.—There was a great crush in and about the rooms of the New York delegation at 10:30 this morning, the time announced for the first meeting of the New York delegates. J. Sloat Fassett called the meeting to order and after considerable delay succeeded in clearing the room of all but the delegates. The meeting lasted only ten minutes and no attempt was made to take a vote on the preference of the delegates for the presidential nomination.

Ex-Senator Warner Miller was elected permanent chairman, the Blaine men having evidently abandoned their program announced yesterday, which was to make Mr. Depew chairman and then attempt to gag him by a resolution requesting him not to present the name of Harrison.

John W. Dwight, of New York, was elected permanent secretary; Philip Becker, of Buffalo, was selected as New York's honorary vice president of the convention, and Rufus T. Peck, of Cortlandt, as honorary secretary. Members of the several committees of the convention were selected as follows:

Resolutions—State Senator Edmund O'Connor, of Binghamton. Rules—Gen. James W. Husted, of Westchester. Credentials—William C. Wallace, of Brooklyn. Permanent organization—General Samuel Thomas, of New York.

Committee to notify nominees for president and vice-president of the action of the convention—Col. Elliot F. Shepard, of New York. Frank S. Witherbee, of Port Henry, was chosen to succeed J. Sloat Fassett as national committeeman.

The meeting adjourned subject to call. Mr. Platt claimed this morning that Mr. Blaine will receive the votes of 58 of the New York delegates. The claim made by the other Blaine men in the delegation is 50 for Blaine against 22 for Harrison. A Harrison delegate made the following estimate after a careful canvass: Blaine 33, Harrison 33, doubtful 5.

ANTI-OPTION BILL.

Washington, June 6.—The house has passed the anti-option bill; yeas 156, nays 46.

A FULL GROWN ROW.

Harrison and Blaine Men Get Into a Squabble.

Minneapolis, June 6.—One of the most dramatic and sensational episodes of the gathering of the clans that have yet occurred took place this morning. It was precipitated by the arrival of an anti-Harrison Indiana delegation from Ft. Wayne, headed by R. G. McDonald, a wealthy politician of that city, who opposed Harrison four years ago on account of some personal grievances. McDonald came in this morning at the head of the Indiana Blaine club, which he had brought on a special train at his own expense.

They bore aloft the picture of the man from Maine. On their arrival at the West, McDonald himself proceeded to hang the picture alongside the Harrison pictures outside the Indiana headquarters. This bold defiance exasperated the Harrisonians beyond measure.

Rhody Shiel in particular lost all control of himself and from the fringe of the crowd shouted to somebody to "cut the rag down." Others urged that McDonald and his people be thrown out and were dared to make the first move in that direction.

Half a dozen people made a dash for the banner, but at this moment it was placed in the hands of a little girl who was hoisted over the heads of the crowd and so kept it out of reach.

The Fort Wayne contingent had by this time received reinforcements and hustling Shiel into a corner they shook their fists in his face and threatened him with personal violence. The Harrison people realizing that a big mistake had been made raised shouts of "peace." But the blood of the antis was up and they refused to be mollified, declaring in language loud and strong that it was now war to the knife. Finally the banner was hung in triumph over the headquarters of the anti-Harrisonians in sight of the regular Indiana room and full length lithographs of the man from Maine were hung up wherever a picture of Harrison could be found.

AT A PREMIUM.

Season Tickets Offered for a Cool Hundred Dollars.

Minneapolis, June 6.—Already the fight for the tickets to the convention has begun and there is a great deal of bitterness among local people about the distribution of these favors. There are claims that tickets have been sold. Certainly some of them are for sale, for an advertisement on the first page of the Minneapolis Tribune says:

"Season Ticket—To the national convention for sale. Price, $105. If you want it make appointment. Address 'H,' 154, Tribune office."

The managers of the convention hall are determined that everything shall be in smooth running order when the convention meets. They had a dress rehearsal yesterday, and with dummy tickets and dummy delegates put their ushers through the business of seating the convention.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Stray Bits of Gossip Gathered in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, June 6.—The bad blood between the sister cities is beginning to show. The Minneapolis papers claim that emissaries from St. Paul are meeting the arriving trains and representing to travelers that they would better stop at St. Paul, as Minneapolis cannot accommodate the crowd. They also claim that trains are being held in St. Paul fifteen minutes or more without reason.

There is a fight in the Minnesota delegation over the position of national committeeman. There are two candidates—Hon. R. G. Evans, of Minneapolis, and Judge Stanford Newell, of St. Paul. The contest, which is animated by good nature, will be settled this afternoon.

A rumor was put in circulation shortly after noo to-day that the Massachusetts delegation had decided to divide its vote beween Blaine and Harrison on the first ballot and then swing to McKinley on the second. Congressman Cogswell says that this is not true—that 20 of the delegates are for Harrison and will stick to him. This is a sample of the stories which have been flying about since Gov. McKinley's arrival.

Gov. McKinley's room, which adjoins the headquarters of the United Press on the third floor of the West hotel, is thronged. Several times the governor has had to come into the hall and shake hands with his friends because the limits of his apartment would not hold his visitors.

THEY INSULTED FORAKER.

Somebody Referred to Him as the Next Vice President.

Minneapolis, June 6.—The Blaine forces were reinforced at noon by the arrival of a large contingent from Cincinnati, headed by the Young Men's Blaine club of that city, two hundred strong; tall, fine looking men in black suits, white hats and carrying red, white and blue umbrellas, which attracted a great deal of attention.

All of them wore a round badge, nearly the size of a breastplate, and bearing an excellent picture of Blaine.

A big crowd, representing a half dozen states, was at the depot to meet them.

Ex-Gov. Foraker, who was also on hand and rode in a carriage between ranks, was given an ovation all along the route, being greeted several times with cries of "our next vice president," in response to which he shook his head.

When the club filed into the West rotunda three cheers for Blaine were called for and given twice over. Somebody called for cheers for the president and the cheers were equally hearty and when a picture of the president was waved over the heads of the Blaine men the uproar was something frightful.

Foraker was called for and made a brief address in which he said that if Harrison was the nominee the young republicans of Ohio would give him their hearty support, for they had never yet sulked or carried a razor. On the other hand if the nomination fell to the people's choice the republicans of Ohio would outdo themselves. (Great applause.)

Other arrivals of the morning included the Maryland republican club, who came in shouting for Harrison, and a large delegation from Iowa, about equally divided in sentiment between the president and Blaine. There was a scene of great enthusiasm.

HARRISON MEN CONFIDENT.

He Has a Strong Following of Able Workers.

Special to the Bee.

Minneapolis, June 6.—If the Boom Ta Ra of the brass bands an dthe yells of the Blainiastics counted, the tattoo statesman would be nominated to-morrow afternoon, but the one significant fact which impresses an old stager in convention is that the men who are to do the most are not brawling in the hotel corridors, or following brass bands.

The Harrison delegates are appointed for a purpose and they are here to carry out the program. They seem confident to-day, much more so than yesterday, though the opposition is determined and hopeful. The rumor that Alger had withdrawn is authoritatively withdrawn. He is in the fight ostensibly for first place, but really to do anything at any time that the Blaine contingent desires.

Clarkson is trying to make all kinds of combinations and the favorites are to be entered in the race of possible, to hold the volume until the Blaine people feel confident, then the break is to come.

The Hoosiers, under the leadership of Wallace, New and Michener are greatly aided by McKinley and Depew and are confident that there will be only two candidates, and that Harrison will be renominated.

In Chicago on Sunday there was more politics than in Minneapolis, and in hotel corridors democrats were hoping that Blaine would be nominated.

Here in Minneapolis the same feeling is manifest among democrats.

Blaine catches the crowd at convention time and he can get the votes on election day.

McKinley is the one man who looms above all the dark horses, and his very presence throws Foraker in the background, though the prince of hate is here to present Blaine's name to the convention.

Minneapolis takes hold of the convention business like a veteran, and delegates and visitors are most favorably impressed.

TAXATION IS THE ISSUE

Senator Vest Again on His Feet.

Silver is Not the Issue of the Campaign.

Proceedings of the Two Houses of Congress—A Little Politics on the Side.

Washington, June 6.—In the senate today Mr. Vest offered a resolution providing that the committee on finance be discharged from the consideration of the free wool bill, and that it be reported back to the senate for consideration.

It was not his purpose, he said, to forestall the action of the Chicago convention by nominating a candidate for the presidency, but if a member of the convention, he would vote for that man who would succeed as the candidate on the platform of tariff reform.

He believed that silver was not the main issue.

Taxation was the great issue and had been in 1888.

In the House.

In the house Mr. Hatch (dem.), of Missouri, moved to suspend the rules (this being suspension day) and pass the anti-option bill. The bill was read by the clerk and was ordered to second reading—yeas, 156; nays, 11. Mr. Hatch then explained the bill, and said the committee on agriculture had agreed that the best plan was to pass the bill under suspension of the rules.

Mr. Rayner (dem.), of Maryland, argued that the bill was unconstitutional.

PURITAN BACKSLIDERS.

"Devout Free Thought" Has Superseded Church-Going in New England.

The student of the time who notes that it is the fashion to read semi-theological novels of the "Robert Elsmere" and "John Ward" order will not fail to make his reflections, wise or otherwise, upon the proposal of the pious folk of Salem that there be no more fast days, says a Boston letter to Chicago Tribune. The Essex Congregational club has memorialized the governor to the end that the old-fashioned fast day be no more appointed. They are shocked at the secular, nay, at the festive character which this once religious holiday has assumed. It grieves them that a day set apart nominally for "fasting, humiliation, and prayer," should be devoted to feasting, jollification, and general "high jinks," as it so notoriously is, and they propose that the difficulty shall be got over by making Easter Monday a legal holiday and Good Friday a day of fasting and prayer. There would be no difficulty in getting the general public to accept Easter Monday—or any other day—as a legal holiday, but in the end the observance of Good Friday will probably remain much as it is at present.

The striking part of it is that here in the midst of Puritan New England, where of old stern Gov. Endicott cut from the flag of England the cross as an idolatrous symbol, and where the "scarlet women" was the abomination of abominations, there should be those who desire to have the church days officially recognized. Whether the devotees of base ball would be willing to have Easter Monday instead of the time-honored fast day may be a question, but it is not probable that they would care what day they had so that they had a holiday, unless Easter happened to come so early that they could not find delight in out-of-door sports.

"The Secularization of New England" would not be a bad title for a study of the change which has come over the theological condition of the land within the last quarter of a century. No one who has not given especial thought to the subject can appreciate how marked is the contrast between New England and other parts of the country in this respect. In the corresponding class in New York people of intelligence and education are very markedly more strict in the matter of church-going than in Boston, and it is true throughout New England that church-going has fallen into almost forgetfulness to a degree surprising when one considers the religious history of the country—unless one accounts for the thing on the theory of the reaction from Puritanism.

The difference between the theological situation here and in the west is that in New England there is a general tone of thought has continued ethical and devout. It is not careless. The phrase "devout free thought," which is quoted from a Bostonian in Barrett Wendell's recent "Life of Cotton Mather," expresses exactly the feeling which pervades society throughout New England. We have ceased to be theologically religious, but the ethical stress is in our blood.

CRUELTY TO CHILDREN.

It Seems to be an Established Tradition in Christian England.

Even at the time of Her Majesty's accession to the throne barbarity to the young was the rule and humanity the exception in Christian England, says the London Telegraph. Young apprentices of both sexes very often slept in coal-cellars, were fed on the foulest scraps and were mercilessly flogged at the will or the caprice of their masters and mistresses. A parish apprentice was a convertible term for a drudge.

Schools, both public and private, throughout the land bore a closer resemblance to bridewells and houses of correction than to places of education. Rods pickled in brine, straps, canes and rulers were the daily pabulum of English boys, from the patrician youth at Eton or Harrow down to the poor little "yellow-hammers" of the charity schools. Small drummer-boys were scourged by the sergeants in the barrack-room, while cabin-boys were roped-ended to a jelly, and sometimes to death, by brutal skippers.

Boys and girls in coal mines toiled from morn till sunset half naked, and stimulated to their labor by the rattan or the thong of the ganger. Children in factories were worked until their limbs wasted away or broke out in sores; until their eyes could scarcely see the machines they were tending, and if they slept over their task they were recalled to consciousness by being savagely belabored with a "billy-roller."

The streets of every city swarmed with child-beggars, often purchased or hired by speculative tramps, who lived in coarse luxury on the alms bestowed by kind-hearted but inconsiderate people on the shivering little mendicants; young chimney-sweeps were beaten with wire brushes until they bled, and thrust up narrow tortuous chimneys, while under ascent was quickened by the application of burning straw to the soles of their bare feet; there was no kind of law to check baby farming, and finally workhouse children, or "workhouse brats," endured systematic ill-usage ten times worse than that chronicled by Charles Dickens in "Oliver Twist."

If land is continually cropped with hay and nothing returned the soil is impoverished. When the "sod" is used for pasturage the droppings help to keep up the fertility. If you wish land plaster to do the most good, quick, put a small amount on each hill of corn just as it is peeping through the ground. The cheapest way in labor is to sow broadcast at the last harrowing before the cultivator.

TACKLED THE WRONG MAN.

A man, evidently a countryman, dashed up Park row in pursuit of a street car the other day, says the New York Herald. He reached it, jumped on the front platform and struck a well-dressed young man twice in the face. The latter fell into the street, and the countryman followed him, striking him as he rose.

The young man succeeded in jumping on the rear platform of the car, and got behind the conductor, who held the aggressor when he tried to get at the passenger. The farmer only gave up the attempt when the conductors on two other cars insisted on holding him also. The passenger jumped off and started on a dead run up Park row. Then between his gasps the farmer gave the reason for his conduct. "Gee whiz!" he gasped, "that's one of them bunco steerers. Well, he comes up to me and says, 'Why, Mister,—I forget what 'twas he called me—'how de do?' He see'd 'twan't no use and lights outer this car and me after him. That's all there is to it. Guess when he gets tired runnin' and gets time to think he'll reckon he made a mistake for once in his life." The farmer pulled himself together, adjusted his hat and tried to lose himself in the crowd.

THE TIPPECANOE CLUB

Passes Through Toledo En Route to Minneapolis.

At 11:30 yesterday a special train bearing the Tippecanoe club of Cleveland passed through Toledo en route to the Minneapolis convention. It was about as dumb and dead a delegation as ever boarded a train. There was not the first sign of the slightest enthusiasm. Everyone was as solmen as if at a funeral.

Quite a number of Toledoans were to have joined the contingent at this point, but Mr. and Mrs. James Melvin were the only ones who boarded the train.

By the way, W. I. Squire was to have led the Republican club a hundred strong, supplemented by 200 outsiders, to the convention. Thirty-three people, including seven dead-heads, will represent Toledo at Minneapolis. Twenty of the 26 are officials of the city, state or county.

GREAT TEARS COURSED

Down the Cheeks While Rev. Dr. Fish Orated.

The Weston Herald, in its account of the Decoration Day ceremonies at that place, makes the following reference to the orator of the occasion, Rev. A. J. Fish, D. D., of Toledo:

"Dr. E. W. Schooley, commander of Neibling post, introduced Dr. Fish, of St. John's Methodist church of Toledo, the orator of the day, who delivered one of the best orations on such an occasion that the citizens have had the pleasure of listening to for a number of years. At different times during the delivery you could notice great tears coursing their way down the cheeks of the old battle-scarred heroes, and wives, mothers and daughters of those who had lost their loved ones in the fierce battles of 1861-65. The speaker had the audience completely under his control and at no time was there the usual noise of visitors to disturb the service."

G. A. R. APPOINTMENTS,

And Other Matters Pertaining to the Department of Ohio.

Department Commander I. F. Mack, Department of Ohio G. A. R., has issued general orders No. 3, in which the following appointments are announced:

Judge Advocate, Allan T. Brinsmade, Cleveland City post; chief mustering office, David G. Nesbit, Memorial post, Cleveland; senior aid-de-camp, Joseph C. Grannan, George H. Thomas post, Cincinnati.

Post commanders in each county have been requested by circular letter to name competent and faithful comrades to serve on the staff as assistant aid-de-camps and the list, when completed, will be printed in general orders.

The headquarters train for the national encampment, to be held in the city of Washington, September 20 to 24 inclusive, will start from Sandusky at 5:00 p. m., September 17, over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and will arrive at Washington at 12:00 m. on the 18th.

THE FIRE COMMISSIONERS.

Regular Monthly Meeting—The Business Disposed of.

The fire commissioners held their regular session Saturday afternoon.

Chief Wall's monthly statement was received and filed. It showed only 12 alarms for the month.

A schedule of bill amounting to $647 and the pay roll, amounting to $4,456.49, were approved and ordered paid.

The bid of the Ketcham Farm Horseshoeing company to do the department shoeing at $1.25 per horse per month, was accepted. This includes all special work.

Councilman Morris, chairman of the building committee, was present, and the new buildings were discussed for a short time.

Patrick McKinley presented a request that his dismissal be made an indefinite suspension, so as to give him an opportunity to get back in the service when the new men are employed next fall. No action was taken.

It was reported that Tim J. Collins, who was discharged from the department a short time ago on account of physical incapacity, had regained his health so as to enable him to again assume his duties. Chief Wall and L. G. Richardson were appointed as a committee to investigte.

TOLEDO PREACHERS

Listen to a Paper by L. H. Johnson—Mass Meeting to be Held.

The regular meeting of the Pastors' union was held at the First Congregational church this morning, Rev. E. A. Pope presiding. Rev. O. P. Ross conducted devotional exercises, after which the minutes of the previous meeting were read and accepted.

Rev. J. L. McDonald was elected secretary, to act in Rev. Williams' place, who has accepted a call to Columbus.

Rev. L. H. Johnson read an able paper on "The Cause of Spiritual Declention." Many of his ideas met with the approval of the pastors. He criticized crazy socials and other modes of entertainment given for the benefit of churches; that there are more sinners than saints in church; that ministers should preach the word of God and then let God take care of it. He thought that Toledo preachers are above the average and set good examples.

The reading of the paper was followed by a discussion. Next Monday night a meeting will be held at the Central Congregational church, of ministers and laymen, to take some action in the Sunday law and order discussion. The next regular meeting will be held June 20; paper by Rev. M. A. Dyer, subject, "Progress of Education Among the Colored People."

AT MIDDLE BASS.

Fishing is Good—A Number of Guests Already at the Island.

Quite a number of members and their guests are at the club house, among whom are Col. M. Churchill and Willis Bailey, of Zanesville, O., guests of A. W. Scott. Saturday they caught 25 bass in five hours.

Col. H. B. Reese, of Lancaster, a nephew of Hon. John Sherman, Mr. Granger, Mr. A. E. Baker, of Toledo, with a party of five, came Saturday.

Mrs. Col. J. W. Fuller and daughter, and a number of others are here enjoying themselves.

The late rains have brought out the lawns to the greenest shade. Maple trees and the vineyards have leaved out, and the sight presents a magnificent view, heightened by the surrounding water.

The club house has been greatly improved. All the rooms have new matting down, with window shades and are freshly papered with the finest quality.

The two new cottages of Messrs. Rodgers and Isherwood are nearly completed.

From all indications the bass fishing will be good, as the waters have cleared up so the finny tribe can see the bait.

The steamer City of Toledo will land passengers in 2:40 time.

Mr. F. A. Cutler knows how to cater to the wants of all, and the table is par excellence.

FISH AND FISHING IN OHIO.

Mr. Gunckel's Paper Well Received in the East.

The Forest and Stream publishes this week the article of Mr. J. E. Gunckel, read before the American Fisheries society and published in the Bee a week ago. Commenting on it the great sporting journal says:

In our columns will be found a timely and valuable paper by Mr. John E. Gunckel on "Fish and Fishing in Ohio." In this article Mr. Gunckel calls attention to the destructive methods of the commercial fishermen, particularly in the use of small-meshed nets, which kill immature and comparatively valueless fish, and in hauling seines over the spawning grounds of certain species. The sturgeon, once so abundant as to pass unnoticed and seldom used, has now become extremely valuable and, in consequence, unusually scarce in Lake Erie. The practice of setting trawl lines on the spawning beds of these fish has nearly exhausted he species. To make matters worse, the spawning grounds are infested by legions of suckers, which consume vast quantities of eggs. Various circumstances combine to interfere with the protection of food and game fishes. Among these are the inadequate compensation of the fish wardens, the obscurity of the laws, and the lack of uniformity as to the legislation of contiguous states. Many of the fishermen oppose any interference with their vocation, although some of them recognize the wisdom and the necessity of regulation of the fishery and of its promotion by fishcultural methods.

Mr. Gunckel mentions what is conspicuously brought to the attention of every observer of the fisheries, the need of missionary work among the people. The enforcement of the laws has become so difficult, owing to the indifference of the people at large, to say nothing of their secret sympathy with the lawbreakers, that the ordinary machinery of state authority has been unable to master the situation, and the belief is rapidly gaining ground that no wild animals can be properly protected until they become the private property of individuals or associations, who will take the steps necessary to protect their rights. We commend this paper of Mr. Gunckel's to the serious consideration of our readers.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Board of education to-night.

Gas trustees meet this evening.

Knights of Honor Grand Lodge meets in Toledo next week.

The councilmen hold their regular biweekly session this evening.

A number of Toledo republicans leave this evening for Minneapolis.

Canton Imperial, I. O. O. F., will install officers next Friday evening.

Gus Wendt has entered the race for the republican nomination as county recorder.

Fred Adams & Son lost 20 tons of hay yesterday on account of a flooded cellar.

Toledo's delegates to the Sunday school convention at Lima will leave to-morrow morning.

Semi-annual reunion of the Scottish Rite Masons in the Maumee valley will occur in Toledo, June 29.

Entertainment by the Pythian Sisters to-morrow evening at the castle. A rare evening's enjoyment is anticipated.

The board of education meets this evening. The contract for supplying the desks required for one year will be let.

Managers of the Industrial School will meet in annual session to-morrow afternoon at the building on Ontario street.

The Master House Painters' association of the Builders' Exchange will hold a special meeting this evening at 8 o'clock.

In common pleas court to-day Judge Pugsley set aside the sale in the case of Bassett, receiver, against C. A. Phelps, et al.

Methodist foreign missionary societies of the city will hold their quarterly meeting and tea with St. John's society on Friday afternoon and evening.

Toledo divisions of the uniform rank, K. P., are getting in shape for the prize drill at Kansas City in August, on the occasion of the meeting of the supreme body.

Bartlett street, at the corner of Wells, was flooded Saturday and Sunday so that cars could not pass at that point. Cross walks were floating around in great shape.

Marriage licenses were issued to-day to the following: Geo. H. Hufford and Rosia Buckenberger; Thomas Perry and Mary K. Marneth; Fred J. Gottschalk and Lena Lembke.

Two electric cars tried to pass on the same track on Canton avenue during the rain storm Saturday afternoon, and as a result a conductor and a motor man were quite badly injured.

Saturday night Christian Waggoner, a drunk, tried to commit suicide in a cell at the police station, but he was cut down and revived. This morning in court he was given $5 and costs.

Saturday afternoon as a double-decker was passing at the corner of Huron and Adams streets the span wire broke, causing the trolly to catch in the roof of the car, tearing it off. The car looked as though a cyclone had struck it.

Mayor Emmick being absent from the city, the fight for the vacant gas trusteeship is confined to securing indorsements. The $1 per year salary resolution may lessen the number of applicants, should it pass the council board this evening.

Lucas lodge, No. 148, K. P., selected the following officers on Saturday evening for the ensuing term: C. C., G. D. Dale; V. C., G. F. Miller; prelate, Milo Warn; M. at A., Silas Ames. G. D. O'Neill was recommended for district deputy for the year.

Children's day will be observed in St. Paul's M. E. church next Sunday. There will be services at 10:30 a. m., 12 o'clock and 4 p. m. The occasion will be an exceedingly elaborate one and will be participated in by a large number, from the pastor down to the smallest boy in the primary class.

Said a prominent republican to a Bee this morning: "Why not withdraw Blaine, Harrison and all other names, from the race for the presidential nomination at the Minneapolis convention and throw the solid votes of the republican delegation of the whole United States to Mr. Know-It-All-But-Talk-Too-Much Depew, of the Center of the Universe?" More harmony.

FATHER DANNENHOFR.

His Death Occurred at Noon To-day.

A Long and Useful Life at St. Peter's Church—Well Known all Over Toledo.

Father Danenhofer, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church on South St. Clair street, died at noon to-day. He has been ailing for some time, but his condition was not regarded as serious, until about a week ago, when he was again confined to his bed.

Father Danenhofer was born at Kleinrederishingen, Lorraine, France, on Feb. 21, 1834. In 1851 he emigrated with his mother and brothers and sisters to this country, and entered St. Mary's seminary of Cleveland in the following year. On June 28, 1863, Bishop Rappe ordained him a priest. His first charge was St. Bernhard's of Akron, where he officiated for three years and one month. On July 27, 1866, he was promoted by his bishop to St. Peter's, where he has been ever since. When assuming the present pastorage the congregation did not number 100 families; now over 300 families worship at the church.

The deceased has always been active in good works, and added many improvements to his charge. Only a short time ago, he observed, in connection with his congregation, his silver anniversary in connection with St. Peter's. His loss will be keenly felt among those who knew him.

THE CITY GAS PLANT

To be Improved by the Purchase of More Territory.

The Trustees Held an Interesting Meeting This Afternoon—To Lease or Buy Land.

The gas trustees have taken the bull by the horns, so to speak, and propose proceeding to the enlargement of the city gas plant.

The trustees held a business meeting this afternoon to consider several important propositions relative to the rental or purchase of more gas territory. The eventual result will be that the plant will be enlarged and improved perhaps by the securing of some good gas rights.

The trustees, it is said, have hit on a plan by which the decision of the courts prohibiting the further expending of mony except for current expenses can be evaded.

It is agreed that more gas is necessary, and to secure more gas there must be more territory.

Telegram Relative to Proffered Assistance.

Mr. E. S. Strong, vice-president of the Northwestern Natural Gas company, this morning wired to Oil City to learn if any assistance was needed and received the following reply:

Oil City, Pa., June 6.

E. Strong, Toledo:

Your grateful message received. Any assistance you can give, both for us and Titusville, will be most highly appreciated.

The city is quiet and orderly. Fifty or 75 dead, and as many more injured.

About 200 families are homeless. Relief committee will organize.

WHO THE "HESSIANS" WERE.

Practically Slaves Bought by England from German Princelings.

The term "Hessians," as generally used in this country, was first intended to signify a mean-spirited man who for money hires himself to do the dirty work of another and his fighting. The word with these meanings was never recognized until after the defeat of Burgoyne, and the peculiar infamy which attached to it is derived from the supposed voluntary employment of the Hessian soldiery by Great Britain against the Americans. That there was no such voluntary employment is historically true, and the reproach which has so long been connected with the word Hessian in this country is as undeserved as it is unfounded, for the Hessian soldiers had no more option in their employment to fight against us than had our negroes to work our rice and cotton fields before the war. As men they were honest, industrious and peculiarly domestic, and would have given half they were worth or years of labor to have remained in their fatherland.

To England alone belongs the disgrace and infamy of enticing the rulers of these men by large subsidies to compel their subjects to fight her wars. The facts, according to the Charleston News and Courier, are these: On February 16, 1776, Lord Weymouth laid before the house of lords a treaty with the Hesse-Darmstadt, dated January 5, 1776; second a treaty between George III. and the duke of Brunswick, dated January 9, 1776, and third, a treaty with the landgrave of the Hesse-Cassel, dated January 15, 1776, for the line of troops to the number of 17,300. After arguments pro and con, and after much opposition, the treaties were ratified. Brunswick furnished 4,084 men for an annual subsidy of about $75,000; Hesse-Cassel, 12,000 men for $51,000; Hesse-Darmstadt, 688 men for $30,000; prince of Waldeck, 670 men on about the same terms. The king of England further agreed to guarantee the dominions of these various provinces against any foreign attack.

To the Englishman belongs the terrible disgrace of hiring men of an alien race to slaughter men as noble as themselves, and related by ties of blood and speaking the same language. But to the landgraves of Hesse-Cassel, Hesse-Darmstadt and duke of Brunswick attach a deeper infamy and disgrace more damnable for the manner in which they obtained possession of their subjects. They tore them without warning or an opportunity for leave taking from their families and sent them to a foreign land, and many to their graves.

Such were the foreigners to whom we, in our short-sightedness, have attached all the brutality and fiendishness which obtained with England's king, and which grew rank and foul in the lives and acts of those German princes. Late though it be to do justice, yet let us endeavor to divest the name of Hessian of the indignities which have surrounded it and retain only our memory of hatred for those embodiments of human demonism who bade their subjects to lift unwilling hands against men whom these subjects would have gladly protected.

DEPRIVED OF INHERENT RIGHTS

Having surveyed his new quarters with the critical eye of a connoisseur, the new prisoner looked up and said:

"I think dis is about the cheesiest joint dot was ever pervided fer de guest ov de state."

"Why, what's the matter?" asked the astonished warden, who took a professional pride in the fact that the institution under his care was considered a model of its kind.

"Ther' hain't no bloomin' bugs."

"Why—"

"An' de grub's good?"

"What do—"

"An' de mug in 16 sez there hain't no floggins."

"Great Scott, man!"

"An' visturs is allowed three times a week."

"Are you crazy?"

"An' he sez we don't hev ter go to ter chapel if we haz religgus scruples agin' it."

"Well, now you look here, you're kicking on the very things that are done for the benefit of the inmates. What are your objections?"

"Objeckshins! Well, what the bloody 'el is a bloke goin' ter beef about wen de inspecters comes round?"—Detroit Tribune.

We Never Shrink

From our duty to our customers, consequently the clothing we sell never shrinks on our customers. We prefer to leave a man enough room to laugh in his sleeve if he wants to, and as we wish our customers to grow more we would not sell them clothing that grows less. The best material, therefore, is put in our garment. They are made in the best fashions by the best workmen, and if we don't ask the best prices for them it is because we are more anxious for customers than money. We are offering a special reduction on Summer Overcoats of 20 per cent. Our Straw Hat sale is still drawing the crowds, and we still lead in 25 and 50 cent neckwear.

Don't fail to try us. We will always be the reliable clothing house of Toledo.

The Makers of History.

From the memorable day when the record book of the Colonists as an independent people was opened for entries, to this eventful year of our Lord 1892, many undying names have been written on its pages. The men who make history are men of action, mental and physical, men of convictions and of courage. Sooner or later, history usually rights the wrongs of present-day judgments and prejudices, and the man stands forth in his true colors. The character of Washington is immovably fixed: intensely loyal, patriotic and democratic, modest of honors for himself, ready for any sacrifice for the sake of his country. Jefferson will always be the scholarly statesman, self-poised, unswerving and dignified, of whom Parton said, "a lover and defender of his kind, an almost perfect citizen." Jackson will be "Old Hickory" to the end of time. Henry Clay, the impetuous patriot, the daring defender of what he believed to be just, the born leader—such will Clay always be in the annals of the republic. Webster's place is unalterably fixed, so is Calhoun's, and so is Lincoln's. There are controversies over many minor points in Lincoln's public career, but enough is assured beyond assail, to place his name high with the greatest of the country's great men.

When the revised chapters of later days are added, the name of Blaine will be conspicuous for its frequency. He has been long in public life and never a quiet or idle man in any official capacity. Forceful, industrious, dashing, audacious, strong and weak at one and the same time, brilliant, unreliable, unskilful for himself and treacherous to his friends, he is the most striking figure in the arena of American politics at the present moment. He wrote the "Mulligan letters," he "cast anchors to the windward" for himself and for disreputable associates when he saw opportunity as a man engaged in the public business and a servant of the people; he led the faction which fomented the dissension under President Garfield, intensifying the Conkling strife which resulted in the assassination of the president; he resigned as a cabinet officer and was written down as "retired." His campaign against Cleveland was a discreditable one, and his record in the Harrison cabinet is yet the most striking of all that is recorded in his political career. He carried the idea of a democratic predecessor to successful consummation in the assembling of the Pan-American congress, of which so much was expected and from which so little has resulted. He dragged his party from the mire by his insistent declarations concerning its pet measure and his masterly tactics in getting his protest incorporated into the letter and spirit of the law. He was instrumental in putting into President Harrison's hands a power never before granted a chief executive of the republic—the power to tax and untax people at his own will. He avowed and simulated honorable friendship for Harrison, apparently forgiving exasperating snubs and manipulations, and then when the moment came, true to his Jekyll and Hyde character, he thrust him to the vitals with his bare sword. Such is Blaine in history up to date.

Confession Extraordinary.

The decline in American shipping is attributed largely by marine men to "the higher first cost of vessels built in this country, and to the cost of operating them under our navigation laws. . . If we are to have a permanent and substantial merchant marine, we must have navigation laws in keeping with the conditions of the time. Our antiquated laws now in force are destructive, rather than protective, of our carrying trade.

These sentiments were printed originally in the N. Y. Commercial Bulletin and quoted, approvingly, by a Toledo republican newspaper which is usually an advocate of the tax restrictive policy. Democrats have never believed that to tax exorbitantly all the materials that go into ship-building and prohibit the purchase of ships built elsewhere would build up the merchant marine of the country. That it will drive our flag from the seas and compel our capitalists to sail under false colors has been amply illustrated. And yet there are obstructionists who think we should offset the tax by subsidy instead of removing the fetters.

"An able administration," truly. Postmaster General Wanamaker is "answering charges;" Pension Commissioner Raum stands convicted out of his own mouth, before his official investigators; Census Enumerator Porter is before a House committee charged with malfeasance in office; Senator Quay, informal boss of a Washington political machine, is under indictment in his own state for misappropriation of funds; the treasury, overflowing with funds when the present incumbent took hold, is empty to the last dollar, and bankrupt, if the honest debts of the government were paid; the president is under condemnation of the civil-service commission for broken pledges and—the rest of the crowd are in Minneapolis to try and fix things for another possible four years. "An able administration"—able to inject more official incompetency, dishonesty and extravagance into a given limit of time than there is room for on the record. To call black white doesn't make it so; the majority of the people are not color blind.

Twenty-five thousand farmers met in convention in a London surburb, Saturday, to discuss agricultural and financial questions. Prince George of Wales was invited to be present, but declined by saying, "As there are political measures involved, he is sure the committee will understand his inability to meet with and address them." He assures the working classes, however, that "he takes a deep interest in their welfare and shall continue to do so." Mr. Gladstone was solicited to made a speech but referred them to his recent utterances in the house of commons. Rulers and statesmen exhibit very much the same traits in all countries where the people have franchise and an election is pending. Perhaps the English farmers will take words for deeds, as farmers do in this country. Perhaps they are learning, as are American farmers that if they want unjust laws revised they must make protest themselves that will command attention.

What remarkable changes are taking place in the elemental world that bring upon the earth such repeated storm disasters? Time was, not so very long ago, when a tornado or cloud-burst was sufficient talk for newspapers and the street for weeks; now there is a quick summing up of the dead and wounded and the wreck of property, and a wonder what next and where it will strike. The Conemaugh valley monument is just dedicated, when comes from a near region another terrible tale of like disaster. In both cases, man's impotent judgment was a factor in the catastrophe. Reservoir and dam will stand only a given amount of pressure. Cloud bursts and deluges are not provided for. With all the achievements of science, advance in meteorology makes tardy progress, and with repeated warnings man makes slow amends for his own share in the blame.

Ex-Minister Fred Douglass attends the Minneapolis convention. The only speech he has made about himself and "his people" is to the effect that President Harrison has "dealt fairly with them in the way of offices." That is the true republican idea of patriotism and of cause for fealty to man or party. Mr. Douglass is not a representative of the negro. He is an illustration of what ability may chance to descend to a man who is five-eighths white. He ignored the blacks when he took a white wife. He has been a conspicuous failure in every public office to which he has been appointed. When he adjures the colored delegates to stand by Harrison, he means to thus repay his own obligation to the president, who kept him in a position he was not competent to fill and which he disgraced with his assumption of authority. No great amount of spread need be made over Mr. Douglas and his advice to "his people."

Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota speaks out: "He only wonders Secretary Blaine did not resign sooner. He has stood the snubs and nagging of the small people with whom he is officially associated, longer than any other living man of his caliber would have done. Whatever credit attaches to this administration belongs to Secretaries Blaine and Rusk. Mr. Harrison is the most signal example in history of a class president." This, in substance, is the character given the chief magistrate, by an influential western republican. Unintentionally it is something more than a stab for Harrison and a boom for Blaine; it is, by implication, a serious arraignment of the predominating element of the Senator's party.

The amendment to the street railway ordinance which Mr. Walker offered at the last meeting of the railroad committee, to prohibit cars passing on curves ought to be made a law that will be rigidly enforced. The companies are recklessly and criminally careless of human life in Toledo, and just such restrictions as Mr. Walker suggests are necessary. In addition to this precaution, the council should compel the companies to place watchmen at the principal corners of Summit street to protect pedestrians from the recklessness of the motor men. This suggestion is in the interest of humanity.

President Garfield was a member of that dreadful Cobden club, and he used to say that John Bright was one of the greatest of the world's statesmen. John Bright said, on the platform and in print:

The people enlighten themselves slowly, but they enlighten themselves. This is why I am certain that the time will come when commerce will be as free as the winds, when liberty and industry will powerfully contribute to disband standing armies and to prevent the dangers and sufferings of war.

Pretty good sentiment to quote occasionally, as a check to the midsummer madness that is upon us.

We have a new word in the language—when politicians make bold breaks from the regular line of action, it will be said of them, "they act in a very Syracuse manner."

When the New York Herald discusses learnedly about the weather, giving utterance to wisdom like this: "The great amount of rain-fall is the cause of so much humidity in the atmosphere," we smile. But when the Herald starts an ice fund for the sick and needy, we applaud.

The goody-good metropolitan newspaper (New York Mail and Express) has another count against Dr. Briggs—he traveled Sunday in order to get to Portland in time to meet his case. This is dreadful.

Minne Apl'is is the belle of the ball this week.

CURRENT COMMENT.

It is impossible to make out the meaning of Blaine's course. It signifies in an unmistakable way that if he should be nominated by the Minneapolis convention he will accept the nomination.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Mr. Blaine's resignation indicates that he has concluded to let things take their course at Minneapolis. His resignation and its prompt acceptance leave him free to act, or, rather, to remain passive and silent, leaving the convention free to do as a majority of its delegates see fit.—Philadelphia Press.

Harrison's chagrin at the palpable meaning of Blaine's summary resignation should be soothingly palliated by the fact that the vacant secretaryship will make a luscious plum for one or other of the remarkable diplomatists whose return to home and country coincide so curiously with the approach of the struggle to retain office.—Pittsburg Dispatch

The retirement of James G. Blaine from the cabinet of President Harrison unquestionably means that the former is in the field for the republican nomination for the presidency. It is a notification to his friends and to the enemies of Mr. Harrison, as well as to the supporters of the present incumbent of the executive chair, that he wants an earnest and aggressive fight on his behalf, and that he is in the contest to stay to the finish.—Detroit Free Press.

It is not definitely settled that Mr. Blaine is in the field as a candidate for the presidency. All that can be said at the present moment is that Mr. Blaine deserves the candidacy, but for the well-known ingratitude of parties, and the sudden, and capricious changes which even an hour may develop in hot times like these, we could affirm that the republicans will certainly honor themselves on Wednesday or Thursday by honoring Mr. Blaine.—New York Herald.

There is no secret at all about the way democrats feel towards President Harrison. They know he is the weakest man the republicans could nominate; they feel sure they could beat him at the polls, but they want him wiped out of politics by his own party, no matter how strong the republican who is nominated in his stead. Democrats see in the ascendancy of Harrison in the republican party a menace to the country's peace. Their desire to have him and the radicalism he represents obliterated from politics is stronger than their own partisanship and they would want him defeated for the nomination even if they knew that the nominee in his stead would poll half a million votes that Harrison would lose.—St. Louis Republic.

This episode, unprecedented in the past history of the republic, will spur to fresh enthusiasm every friend of Blaine and cannot but carry confusion into the camp of his quondam chief, whose defeat appears to be imminent. It is notice from Blaine that he will gladly head a column of which Harrison could be only perfunctorily a leader, respectable but cold, correct but selfish, zealous but non-inspiriting. Not content with safe mediocrity the republicans, a party of enthusiasts and hero worshipers, will, in all human probability, turn from the president to the dashing ex-secretary and follow again, possibly to defeat, mayhap to triumph, the man whom its imagination has invested with knightly attributes, though he never in actual martial strife fought afoot, afield, or guarded a leagured wall.—Chicago Times.

A STATE STREET BOY

Gets Up a Scheme That Outdoes Jesse James.

He Steals a Large Amount of Money, Then Breaks the Window Gets in Bed, Chloroforms Himself and Says Burglars Did It.

A report came to the police headquarters this morning that a house on State street had been entered by burglars during the night and $252 stolen from a bureau drawer. The informant went on to state that a young man, the 19-year-old nephew of the people living in the house, was chloroformed by the burglars to put him out of the way while the job was being done.

Otto lives with his aunts who have been very kind to him. He told a very romantic story this morning when he awoke, showed the women the chloroform bottle, the saturated rag, the broken window, depicted in glowing language his struggle with the house-breakers, and they believed him, as most anybody would, for the detail was all there, even to a box outside the broken window to climb in on, and, another at the back fence for the same purpose.

Detectives Hall and Nichter were put on the case. They went to the house and looked things over. In the bureau drawer where the money had been was a large amount of silver spoons, knives, forks and other valuables untouched. This looked queer after all the trouble the burglars took to enter the premises.

The detectives took the bottle half-filled with chloroform and made a tour of the drug stores. At last at Gates', on Adams street, they found that the young nephew had been there and purchased the chloroform.

Otto was then placed under arrest and was finally scared into a confession. He owned up that there were no burglars at all. He had fixed up the whole story and arranged all the details. The money he had hid in an old rubber boot and it was all recovered.

Otto did some tall figuring and arranged a pretty good show, but somehow or over the combination busted and Otto wasn't so smart as he had imagined.

EVIDENCE OF THE WAR.

Four Unknown Men Lynched on the Plains.

Buffalo, Wyo., June 6.—A party of cattlemen, who were preparing for a round-up when the injunction of the judge was served upon them, have returned to this town and report the finding of a relic of the recent war between cattlemen and rustlers in the shape of four human bodies swinging to the limb of a tree.

The bodies had evidently been hanging for several weeks and were dried and shriveled to such an extent that it was impossible to tell who they were. They were dressed in the regular cowboy style. An investigation has been made to find who were missing.

HELD FOR TRIAL.

St. Louis, June 6.—Frank Brady, a negro, was arrested here last night and is being held for the Chicago authorities. Over a year ago Brady stabbed and killed Charles Harris in a quarrel over the affections of a woman.

A COOL-HEADED BURGLAR

Accidentally Sets Fire to a Franklin Ave. House

And Then Calls in the Assistance of a Police Officer to Help Extinguish the Flames.

Talk about cool-headed, cold-blooded burglars.

One of the gentry who visited the residence of Mr. Wm. Hannin, corner of Adams street and Franklin avenue, outrivals the daring audacity of Jim Barlow or Claude Duval.

He entered the house while the inmates were sound asleep, and with the aid of a match proceeded to investigate. It appears that he would hold a lighted match until it burned his fingers and then throw the still burning remains on the floor proceeded to light another.

On returning to a room he had quitted a few moments before he saw that the place was on fire. He ran from the house, and meeting a police officer, coolly informed him that "a house back there" was on fire.

He hurried to the place with the officer. The fire was now burning brightly. In his haste the officer failed to notice that though the rear door was open none of the family was to be seen.

They secured police, the burglar doing the pumping act, but the apparatus failed to respond. A large boiler of water intended for to-day's washing stood convenient, and between them they carried the boiler of water into the house where the flames were soon extinguished.

It was when the officer looked around for his gentlemanly associate that he discovered that he was alone. The family was aroused and then it was found that the house had been ransacked, but little of any value taken.

Prince Alfred of Edinburgh, heir of the Duke of Coburg-Gotha, has entered the university of Munich as a student in the department of law. Until a few weeks ago he was pursuing his studies at Coburg.

DROWNED OUT.

Numerous Residences Injured by Saturday's Downpour.

The terrible rainstorm of Saturday afternoon worked considerable damage in the low lying districts of the city. Numerous residences on Erie and Huron, between Oak and Adams streets, were flooded and considerable damage was done to furniture, etc., along Canton avenue and adjoinings treets.

The trouble was caused chiefly by back water from the sewers. The warter works and police departments rendered what services could be given, but were unable to do much good.

The basement of the jail building was a perfect sea of filth and stench. The water was fourteen inches deep on the cellar floor and the furniture and cooking utensils were floating on the surface of the flood.

The records of the weather department show that more rain fell, per hour, on Saturday, than at any other time in the history of the weather service in Toledo.

The actual rainfall on Saturday was 1.52 inches or 40,501 gallons per acre. The normal precipitation for the month of June as based on an average for 22 years, is 3.57 inches. Already there has fallen 1.85 inches in four days, which is over half the rain allotted for June.

During the terrific downfall late Saturday afternoon the water was falling at the rate of one inch per hour.

SEVENTEEN LEFT

Out of Twenty-five Toledoans Who Banqueted

Twelve Years Ago, and Last Evening the Survivers Met Around the Banquet Board Once Again.

They have dwindled to seventeen and the finger of time is painting lines of age on their brows, still they cling together and those that are left as years roll away will come together once in twelve months around the banquet board. Thus it was that at the Toledo club last evening 15 of the 25 charter members of the Scottish Rite bodies in the valley of Toledo, who formed an association twelve years ago, gathered to enjoy a feast and live the old days over once again.

There were present W. W. Ainsworth, Clarence E. Armstrong, D. R. Austin, H. W. Bigelow, Leander Burdick, D. J. Caine, D. P. Chamberlain, G. W. Hart, Harry Haynes, R. C. Lemmon, C. R. Messinger, Lyman Nolton, jr., of Detroit, J. Cooper Price, M. C. Robinson and Dr. H. M. Schnitzler. The two other surviving members are C. E. Bliven, who is in Chicago, and W. T. Walker, at present in New Mexico.

A short business session was held, at which officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

President—C. E. Armstrong.
Vice President—G. W. Hart.
Secretary and Treasurer—D. J. Caine.
Executive Committee—M. C. Robinson, W. W. Ainsworth and Harry Haynes.

It was a festive occasion. Everybody was in excellent spirits, the menu was tempting, and the flow of soul was there in copious quantities.

President Armstrong was toastmaster, and called on the following gentlemen for the sentiments coupled with their names:

Our Fraternal Relations—D. R. Austin.
Our Dead—Leander Burdick.
Our Active Members—H. W. Bigelow.
What Are Our Duties to Each Other—R. C. Lemmon.
The Future of Masonry—D. R. Chamberlain.
The Old Days in the A. and A. Rite—G. W. Hart.
Masonry and Religion—J. Cooper Price.
Masonic Charity—Harry Haynes.
Our Annual Reunion—H. M. Snetzler.
The Welcome Return—C. R. Messenger.
Active Members of the Executive Committee—M. C. Robinson and W. W. Ainsworth.
The Faithful Member—D. J. Caine.

The members who have passed away are W. C. Cheney, Albert Moore, E. T. Martin, E. H. Norton, H. H. Queen, E. T. Waite and R. H. Warringer.

Those who still hold forth on this footstool one year hence will gather and repeat last evening's celebration, and so it will go on until but one is left. Then, perhaps, he'll go off and banquet by himself, just to keep up the old custom. It sounds a good deal like the tale of the Nancy Bell, in which the shipwrecked sailor tells of his having eaten the captain, the mate, the boy and the crew and had assumed all titles. The last men in this Toledo organization will have to absorb all the offices and walk around as an association. It has been said that only an editor and a man with a tape worm can use the word "we," but the last man of the above body will certainly have to be added to the list.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

Some Useful Hints to Would-Be Orators.

How the Art is Acquired and Practiced—Methods of Some Great Speakers.

In this day women are doing quite as much as men in various trades and professions, except one. It is public speaking, says a writer in the Jenness Miller Illustrated Monthly. Many women speak well in public, and many do not. Both classes may obtain useful hints from what Lord Dufferin has said on the subject.

What is required before one can think effectively upon his or her feet is the perfect concentration of attention upon what they have to say; but this is almost impossible to those who are new to the effort. A multitude of thoughts utterly foreign to their speech and its subject are dividing their minds, while sheer physical nervousness imparts a further element of confusion. The fear of failure and its consequences; the dazzling spectacle of so many hundred attentive faces swimming before your eyes; the careless gestures and whisperings of the indifferent members of their audiences; the knowledge that their notes have got hopelessly mixed, combine to create a situation of mental torture which shakes the limbs, dries the mouth, and twists the tongue inextricably round the teeth.

Indeed, so terrible is the ordeal that, as we all know, only a minority are capable of surviving it; but, in the case of those who have courage to persevere, these unpleasant accidents and symptoms will eventually vanish, the train of their thoughts will gradually flow forth clearly and calmly, and the necessary words will suggest themselves with less and less difficulty and effort.

But still I am inclined to believe that no good speech is ever made, unless by the most practised of our public men, without a great deal of careful preparation. Indeed, it is almost an insult to his audience for any ordinary person to demand their attention unless he has well considered beforehand what he is going to say.

But, of course, both the kinds and the degrees of possible preparation are very various. Some persons—and this, we know, was the practice of Demosthenes, of Cicero, and of the ancients—write out every word of their speeches from beginning to end beforehand, and this practice, I imagine, has been followed by many eminent orators of our own time—by Macaulay, for instance, by the late Lord Ellenborough, and by others. Some persons only compose and write out beforehand portions of what they intend to say, but these portions generally include the exordium and the peroration. Mr. Bright, I believe, made no secret of this being his practice, and we have Lord Brougham's own statement for the fact that he wrote out the last paragraphs of his speech in defence of Queen Caroline nine times.

But I do not recommend any one who would really desire to become a good speaker to accustom himself, unless on unexceptional occasions, even though he should write out his speech beforehand, to learn it by heart. Such a practice is like swimming with corks. In the first place, to most people both the labor of such a process and the time occupied in executing it would be found excessive, and, in the next, if through any lapse of memory you get into difficulties, your breakdown is sure to be instantaneous and complete. Moreover, under such conditions, you would never become a debater or capable of replying to the arguments of an opponent, which is even a more useful and necessary aptitude in public life than the art of delivering a set speech. At the same time, there are occasions when it would be prudent to follow such a course.

All bread is not made from the flour of the cereals. Along the Columbia river a kind of bread is made by the Indians from a moss that grows on the spruce fir tree. This moss is prepared by placing it in heaps, sprinkling it with water and permitting it to ferment. Then it is rolled into balls as big as a man's head and there are baked in pits.

JIMTOWN IN FLAMES.

Fire Wipes Out a Mining Village.

A Coal Oil Explosion in Colorado Results in Most Serious Loss.

Denver, June 6.—The bustling camp of Jimtown, which is separated from the famous mining town of Creede by a mile and a half, was almost totally destroyed by fire, which started at 5:30 Sunday morning. The flames were started by an explosion of coal oil, with which a family living in the Kinneavey block were starting a fire to prepare breakfast.

As there was no fire department the flames had it all their way, and in a short time they burned through the rows of frame buildings for a distance of a mile in the narrow gulch in which the town is situated. Many houses were blown up with giant powder in an attempt to stop the fire, but this had no effect, for the flames leaped from one vacant space to another, and only stopped for the want of material.

Little, if any, of the contents were saved and there are hundreds of families homeless, but they will be provided for by the people of Creede. While the fire was in progress, the numerous saloons were thrown open to the crowd and liquor was free to all who might desire it.

The result was that many drunken men were on the streets, but they did no damage. One hundred deputy sheriffs have been sworn in, and they will protect the town against attempts at thieving by persons who, on occasions of this kind, take advantage of the great distress. The total loss is estimated at a million dollars.

Wages of Workingmen Are to Go Down.

Will the Republican Convention in Minneapolis Note This in the Platform.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 6.—The Mahoning and Shenango Valley iron and steel manufacturers have presented a wage scale for the consideration of the Amalgamated Association of Steel and Iron workers, which convenes in this city to-morrow.

The manufacturers' scale contemplates a general reduction of wages from 16 to 60 per cent.

The Pittsburg Forge and Iron company, which employs 1,000 men, have notified their men that on July 1, a general reduction in wages must be made, irrespective of any scale or rules the Amalgamated association may determine upon.

THE MAYFLOWER.

Every locality has its own mayflower. The mayflower of England is the hawthorn; the mayflower of Massachusetts would be the epigaea repens, or trailing arbutus; the mayflower of Pennsylvania would be the podophylium; the mayflower of Mexico is a beautiful orchid, known in our green houses as laelia majalis.

TABLE TURNING IN CHINA.

How the Almond-Eyed Medium Conducts a Celestial Seance.

As things go by contraries in China, we find the phenomenon of table turning reversed; in other words, Chinese tables, instead of turning on their legs, whirl around on their heads, with their legs pointing to the ceiling. The directions usually given are to place a couple of chopsticks at right angles across a mortar or bowl filled with water, and upon these the table is turned upside down. Four children are then called in and to each is assigned a leg, on which one hand is gently laid, while the other seizes the free hand of a companion. The medium then reads an incantation, and soon the table begins to heave with emotion, and at last revolves, carrying the lads along with increasing velocity, until the table is whisked off its axis. The Chinese are said to implicitly believe that table turning is the work of devils or spirits, yet it is never performed save for the sport it yields, nor do they ever attempt to hold communication with the spirit world by this means.

The development of the banana trade is an illustration of the marvels made possible by science, through modern carrying facilities. Only four years ago H. Dumois & Co. purchased 35 square miles of land in Dinos, Cuba, then covered with a dense forest and having only ten inhabitants. About half the land has now been cleared and 9,000 acres planted with bananas. Broad roads have been laid out, a railroad ten miles long has been built, a town of 3,500 inhabitants has been created and nine steamers are kept running throughout the year to carry the banana product to New York.

LEGAL NOTICE.

Samuel Fuller, and ——— Fuller, his wife, first name unknown, and whose residence is unknown, will take notice that George Schuller, on the 4th day of November, 1891, filed his petition, and on the 9th day of May, 1892, filed his amended petition against them, and others, in the court of common pleas, Lucas county, Ohio, in which plaintiff in substance avers that one David Fuller and his wife executed and delivered to plaintiff a certain mortgage, on lots number 4 and 6 in block 74 in the plat of North Toledo in said county, to secure the payment of a certain note described in said petition on which there is due and unpaid interest at eight per cent. from April 14th, 1876, to February 20th, 1884, on $275, and $145 with interest at eight per cent. from February 20th, 1884. That it also stated in said petition that said defendants, Samuel Fuller and his wife, claim to have a title to said premises, but that their ownership thereof, if any they have, is subordinate and subject to said mortgage. That the prayer of said petition is to have said mortgage foreclosed and said premises sold to pay said debt. Said defendants are required to answer said petition on or before June 14th, 1892, or a decree may be rendered against them.

Why is it that some houses always need repainting?

The owner has them painted in the Spring; by Fall they have a dingy, rusty faded look.

A neighbor's always looks fresh, clean, and newly painted, and yet is not re-painted oftener than every four or five years.

The first "economizes" by using "CHEAP" paint; the second uses nothing but

Strictly Pure White Lead

The first spends three times as much for paint in five years, and his buildings never look as well.

MYSTERY.

I.

Men love thee not, dear, holy Mystery,
But seek to slay thee who art one with life;
The hidden impulse of its noblest strife,
The subtle force by which our spirits see.
—Thou wisdom of the Dark!—Man wants not thee.
But knowledge, as an urchin craves a knife
Although it wound him; for this age is rife
With petty doubt and curiosity.
We long to map the wrong side of the moon,
To know the stars like simple meadow-flowers,
To make of space one dreary commonness,
Not deeming Death's soft plenitude a boon,
Since it unfolds us from the rushing hours
And makes our dream of victory ever less.

II.

Ah, stubborn egoism of the mind,
That will not read God's precious silent right,
Striving to drag His secret to the light
Of its small torch. Shall we not some day find
Elest Mystery, we not so wholly blind,
That thou are twin to Deity, more bright
In shadow than man's wisdom at its height,
And one with love, though differing in kind?
Than hunger of the soul more keen its thirst!
So, later thou shalt take thy rightful place
With weary men and hear him call thee blest.
But lo! how God hath loved thee from the first—
For when He made the deep He veiled His face,
Lest he should see His image in its breast!

The original autograph commission of Captain Nathan Hale, of Connecticut, the martyr spy of the revolution, was sold for $1,775 at a recent auction in New London. The state of Connecticut sent a bid of $250, but it was bought by a firm of autograph dealers, who now hold it at $5,000.

In washing grained wood-work use clear water or cold tea. Where there are finger marks to be removed, such as around the door-knob or on the windowsill, a little fine soap can be used, but only just enough to do the work, for soap should be used for this work only on very rare occasions, and ammonia never used.

To destroy flies boil the parings of potatoes in a little water for an hour. Skim them out and boil the water down to a few tablespoonfuls. Sweeten with molasses and turn into plates. It is a deadly poison. Another method is to steep quassia chips to a strong decoction, sweeten and proceed as above.

We are a nation of coffee drinkers. During the last nine months the imports of coffee into the United States amounted to 465,187,732 pounds, an increase of upward of 100,000 pounds over the imports for the same period last year. In the same time the imports of tea have increased only from 75,609,214 pounds to 83,270,302 pounds.

The principle followed by Mr. Thwaite in his appliance for the prevention of smoke in steam generators consists in the admission of a secondary air supply through a wire gauge of a specific mesh, adapted to offer the requisite frictional resistance to the passage of such air, so as to accord accurately with the "pull" on the grate, which remains unaffected.

The largest band sawing machine in the world has recently been completed in England and sent to Tasmania. The machine can saw through a maximum depth of 75 inches, and the carriage will accommodate logs 50 feet long and weighing about 50 tons. It is asserted that this saw cuts even faster than a circular saw, while wasting 75 per cent. less wood.

Experiments in the ventilation of tunnels on Saccardo's system have recently been carried out in Italy. In this system fans and ventilating shafts have been dispensed with, but air is compressed into a reservoir outside the tunnel, to which it is led in suitable mains. From these mains it is allowed to escape at different points inside the tunnel, from which it drives out the foul air.

An ingenious apparatus for ascertaining the depths of rivers and smaller streams has recently been successfully tried on the Elbe. It consists of a curved arm, hinged at its upper extremity and of a length sufficient for the lower curved portion to trail on the bed of the stream. The greater the depth of the stream the more will the arm be inclined, and hence by suitable recording mechanism the depth can be automatically registered.

The effects of regular marching upon soldiers have been studied by Dr. Colin, a physician of the French army. It appears that the regularity of the step causes a shock to the brain and bones far more injurious than an irregular walk, giving rise to peculiar aches, pains and illness of the troops. This shock is repeated 40,000 times in a day's march, and the strain often breaks down the strongest men—those who could endure readily a much longer ordinary walk—in two or three days. The use of a rubber heel in military boots has been found to act as a partial remedy.

Base ball appears to be at a pretty low ebb in Philadelphia. For a city that pretends to be so much the Quaker town is the wost quitter of any in the League circuit. It is an exceptional season, and yet Philadelphia cranks won't attend. This is partly due to the fact that the Phillies do not stand very high in the race, and that Philadelphia wants base ball at 25 cents with a free street car ride and a bag of peanuts thrown in.—Cleveland Leader.

SHE FELL IN A TRANCE.

Miss Irene Has a Close Call, but Lands on Her Feet.

"Miss Irene," he said, as the fair girl came tripping down to the parlor fifteen minutes late, "I have a painful duty to perform."

The words cut like a butcher's knife through a side of prime Chicago dressed beef. All the light went out of her $150 engagement ring.

"The duty I have to perform," he went on, slowly, "is one, Miss Irene, that will make this evening long remembered. A great tale of woe will always rise in my heart when I think on it."

She toyed mechanically with her peroxide of hydrogen bangs.

"Miss Irene," he continued, "while I was waiting in the parlor I happened to pick up a volume on the center table."

All the fluffiness died in the girl's golden bangs.

"That volume, Miss Irene, tells me that it is folly longer to buy you peanuts and ice cream."

It was a dagger in her heart.

"Spare me, spare me!"

"Never. Now it is too late. The name of the volume is 'Drake's Sure and Steady Guide to Successful Love, Courtship and Marriage.'"

"It is too true, it is too true!" she cried falling in an interesting trance on the rug.

"Then you will marry me, after all, darling?" she purred, as she came back to life three hours later.

"Yes, indeed."

"For, you see, as I explained, the book belonged to my sister. Don't hold me so close, as my breath catches so dreadfully here in the dark!"—N. Y. Recorder.

RUNNING A RAILROAD IN SPAIN

Engineers Stop to View the Sights and Conductors Go Hunting While En Route.

I had been told about Spanish trains not being punctual, of Spanish clocks varying, and so forth, says a writer in the Contemporary Review, but between Barcelona and Valencia I found I still had some things to learn. Of course the train could not go on till the stationmaster had done his coffee nor could the engine be got to move till the driver had finished flirting; the swashbuckler guard, armed with sword and carbine, has also affairs of his own which may unexpectedly be permitted to control the Spanish pilgrim's progress. But what is this? In open country, miles from any station, the train suddenly pulls up. I had noticed a man galloping across country. Well, he had been thrown in an adjacent field.

The villagers were assisting him to rise; one held his horse. The group caught the engine driver's eye; he simply stopped the train out of sheer curiosity. Further, will it be believed that most of the people got out and ran to join the gaping crowd? And we actually stopped on this idle errand for about twenety minutes, to the great content, apparently, of all but half dozen of English, including myself, and two American ladies.

Night came, but no rest for me, the first-class carriage being by that time not only crowded but filthy. The official ticket collector was among us. Besides his uniform he wore a hunting pouch and had brought his fowling-piece. After snipping our tickets he smoked himself to sleep. As day dawned he woke up and got talkative. He then coolly told the astonished travelers that, although bound to inspect for another fifty miles, he should get out at the next station, have a little shooting on the Sierra Morena mountains, and catch the return train about midday! The train soon stopped; he wished us all polite boodbye, raising his official cap, got out with his gun and pouch, and we saw him no more. I ventured openly to disapprove of his conduct. A Spanish gentleman shrugged his shoulder sympathetically, but seemed astonished when we talked of reporting the inspector, as if Spain could not go on at all if this sort of foreign intervention were countenanced. I at once appreciated the situation. I felt that to bother an employe in his amusements in Spain was like "robbing the poor man of his beer" in England. The moralist within me became dumb; I sank to the Spanish level, and held my peace.

Quince trees eight years old and as many feet high fail to bear for a correspondent. They blossom only to blast. This is possibly owing to imperfectly fertilized ovaries. Spraying will not remedy it. If growing very thrifty they will not fruit so soon as when forming only a moderate growth. This will set fruit in good time. Do not forget to find the borers in the trunk, at the surface of the soil. Here is where many quince growers fail.—New York Tribune.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BEEN DISAPPOINTED,

As a general family remedy for dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., I hardly ever see anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.

Flood and Fire Combine in Pennsylvania

To Spread Death and Desolation.

Over One Hundred People Believed to Have Been Lost, and Damage to the Amount of Millions Caused.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 6.—The oil regions of Pennsylvania were visited Sunday by a disaster of fire and water that is only eclipsed in the history of this country by the memorable flood at Johnstown, just three years ago. It is impossible to give anything like an accurate idea of the loss of life and property, as chaos reigns throughout the devastated region and a terrible conflagration still rages in Oil City.

It is safe to say that not less than 150 lives have been lost. Nearly 100 bodies have already been recovered and many people are still missing. The number may far exceed 150, but this is regarded as a conservative estimate.

The property loss will reach far into the millions.

At Titusville the loss is estimated at $1,500,000; Oil City, $1,500,000; Corry, $60,000; Meadville, $150,000, and surrounding country probably a million more.

The flood started at the head-waters of Oil creek. At Corry the rain poured incessantly in torrents for nine hours. Reaching Spartansburg, the pressure of water burst a big dam and the accumulated flood rushed on to Titusville.

There it came so quickly the people had not time to reach a place of safety.

The water soon swept a number of oil tanks down the stream, and in some way not known they were ignited. In less time than it takes to tell the story the flames spread to the surrounding buildings, and before they could be subdued five blocks had been burned.

The oil from the scores of broken tanks ran into the creek and was ignited by the floating debris. In a few minutes the creek was ablaze from shore to shore, and as it was carried down the stream death and destruction followed in its wake. Everything inflammable took fire, and by the time it reached Oil City all the bridges between the two points were consumed.

Oil City is 18 miles from Titusville. The towns along the creek are Boughton, Miller Farm, Pioneer Petroleum Center, Rynd Farm, Rouseville, and McClintockville. Rouseville has about 1,000 inhabitants and the other towns about 200 each. Oil flows through a narrow gorge all the way, and as the towns are mostly situated on the hills, it is hopped there was no loss of life. Communication has been cut off from these places, however, and nothing is definitely known.

It is certain that incalculable damage must have been done to property all along this valley and until information is secured the greatest fears are entertained regarding possible loss of life. The entire region is frightfully crippled and it will be months before it can regain its prosperous condition. Prompt assistance will be given to this city and other places, but the case appeals to the broad charity of the whole country.

Immediately upon receipt of the intelligence here Col. W. C. Connolly, of Gov. Pattison's staff, notified the governor, who instructed him to put himself in communication with the authorities of the devastated district and send partiulars so the state could take appropriate steps for giving relief.

A Press correspondent was standing on Center street, directly in front of the Derrick office, and on the approach to Oil Creek bridge. The creek is a raging torrent and Center street, for one square was a solid mass of humanity, and 500 or 1,000 people had approached this point of vantage, watching the muddy waters rolling by.

At about 11:30, upon the opposite side of the stream, a greenish fluid floating on the water was noticeable. This increased rapidly in quantity and extent, and at last covered almost entirely the yellow muddy waters of the creek. A smell of gas and oil was perceptible and several gentlemen were discussing the danger should the oil catch fire.

Hardly were the words uttered when about 200 yards up the stream a mass of flame was seen to shoot heavenward. "Run!" yelled a hundred voices, and the people ran like stampeded cattle and started for the hills. Hardly had they started when a terrific explosion rent the air and the entire creek for hundreds of feet on each side seemed one seething mass of flame and smoke.

The panic-stricken crowd shrieked madly in their efforts to escape. Women and children were tramped under foot and about 20 were severely bruised and had to be picked up by a few of the cooler heads and carried out of harm's way. Oil Creek, usually, is not more than a foot deep at this point where it empties into the Allegheny river and about 100 yards wide.

Directly at its mouth is the iron bridge of the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio railroad. About two squares farther up the stream is the iron and wooden bridge of the city connecting the Third ward with the city proper. On the east side of the creek is Trinity Methodist church, and the National Transit building on one side of Center street, and the Derrick office and Oil Exchange opposite. Across the creek and built up squarely from the water's edge was the hotel and livery stable of J. B. Reinbold and the furniture house of Paul & Sons. These buildings were built on narrow strips between the creek and the hills which rise precipitously, immediately back of them.

About half a mile from the postoffice, northward from here, on the Western New York & Pennsylvania railroad, a tank filled with gasoline was standing on a siding. Some young men passing noticed that the tank was leaking, and knowing its explosive nature, and seeing a shifting engine approach, ran up the side of the hill where they turned and looking down, and as the engine passed witnessed a fearful sight, as a mass of flame shot a hundred feet into the air and the earth seemed to shake with an awful tremor.

The engineer and firemen were seen jumping from the cab, and it is supposed at this writing they were burned to death or killed by the force of the explosion.

In an instant the flames swept madly over the entire upper part of the city, which is flooded by the oily waters of the creek, and men, women and children who were moving from their houses were caught by the deadly flames and if not burnt to death outright were drowned in the raging flood. At this writing seven ghastly bodies have been taken from the flood and are lying on the railroad track unrecognized, waiting for their friends to come and claim them.

At this end of the city was another iron and wooden bridge which went down five minutes after the fire started, the huge iron structure being broken and swept away like so much kindling wood. From this bridge southward for a quarter of a mile the entire town is destroyed and the fire is still raging. The fire departments are making heroic efforts to stop the flames and risking their lives every instant, as it is not known at what moment many of the immense oil tanks above here will burst and send their burning contents down upon them. The Imperial Refining company's large tanks are visible from here and all are burning, and it is greatly feared that the burning oil will again come down the creek, and if it does little of the business portion of the city will remain standing. Paul & Son's furniture store, a four-story building, was swept away, with $30,000 worth of stock, furniture, etc. Reinbold's hotel and livery stables were destroyed in a few minutes, and Mr. Reinbold and two others, who have not been identified, were burned to death. These three bodies have been recovered, and it is not known how many more are lost at this writing. About half the Third ward has been destroyed and the fire is still doing its awful work in this part of the city.

People are panic-stricken all over town, and mothers have been running madly about looking for their lost children. Fathers of families are searching for their children and endeavoring to get them all together in a place of safety. It is almost impossible to find words to describe this awful calamity, and at this time no one has any idea of the number of lives that have been lost.

For miles up the creek on both sides everything is in ruins, and hundreds of families have been rendered homeless. The fire came so suddenly and so unexpectedly that very little if any property has been saved along this stream, and the sky for miles around is still black with the smoke from burning dwellings and oil tanks.

When the two explosions occurred this morning people were knocked down by the force of the shocks and every window for two squares along Center street was broken. Falling glass added to the danger and several people were slightly cut. One young girl was picked up out of the mud on this street after the crowd had passed over her. She was badly bruised and cut, but not seriously injured it is thought.

The panic at this time was something awful, and it is remarkable that none were killed by the horses and wild mob, as it was a case of every one for himself. The flames and smoke covered the entire lower part of the city and it seemed the entire city was doomed to destruction.

The water in Oil creek is falling slowly at this time and it is hoped the worst is over and no more lives will be lost. The creek is about 15 feet deep here now and bout 100 yards wide, and in the memory of the oldest inhabitants has never been so high before. In the upper part of town about 100 dwellings have been destroyed by fire, and owing to the depth of the water the fire department can do little to stop the flames. This part of the city cannot be reached at all, and Seneca street, up to within four squares of the postoffice is blockaded with lumber, sheds and roofs of houses, which have floated down from above. Nothing seems to be exaggerated, and affairs are appalling.

One Hundred and Fifty Killed.

It is now believed that 150 people have been killed by the flood and fire.

AN UNDISPUTED TEST OF MERIT.

A medicine that has been a household remedy for over fifty years and used in that time by over 150,000,000 persons, must have great merit. Such a medicine is found in Brandreth's Pills. This fact demonstrates the value of these pills better than any statement of the proprietors. It will be observed that the dose required to cure is small. One or two pills taken every night for ten or twenty days will cure dyspepsia, costiveness, rheumatism, liver complaint, biliousness, or any disease arising from an impure state of the blood.

Brandreth's Pills are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

Sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

FARMERS OF ENGLAND.

They Meet to Discuss the Condition.

Prince George of Wales Thinks So Much of Working People That He Stays Away from Them.

New York, June 6.—A dispatch from London says: One of the largest demonstrations of agricultural laborers that have taken place in England for many years was held to-day at Ham Hill under the auspices of the Somerset and Western England Farm Laborers' union.

Over 25,000 agricultural laborers were present. George Mitchell, 50 years ago himself an agricultural laborer, and who for many years has been known as a prolific and able writer on financial and labor topics over the nom de plume of "One From the Plow," presided over the gathering.

At the outset of the proceedings the following letter was read, which had been received in reply to an invitation to Prince George of Wales, oldest surviving son of the Prince of Wales, and heir to the throne.

The letter was dated from Marlborough house, London, and signed by Major General F. D. Winton, comptroller of the prince's household.

"With reference to your letter of May 29, his Royal Highness, Prince George of Wales, I am desired in reply to your invitation to speak at your meeting of June 6, to say that the position he occupies prevents him from taking any part in any meetings which are of a political nature, or which have reference to the proceedings of the legislature of the country. His Royal Highness feels sure that you will understand this, and that he has always taken a deep interest in the working classes and their welfare, and will continue to do so."

Mr. Gladstone wrote as follows on a postal card: "I have received your invitation with pleasure, but my speeches as well as my letters in the newspapers are already too frequent and I am reluctant to add to them by touching a subject which has been the subject of several of my most recent speeches in the house of commons. Resolutions were passed demanding a revision of the land laws, the repeal of the game laws, and declaring that every farm laborer in England should be a member of the Agricultural Laborers' union.

Beechams Pills are the best.

"The wind blew through his whiskers" had its origin at St. Joseph, Mo., ten years ago. A lunatic who had escaped to the roof of a house and held at bay a number of strong men for hours, was afterwards asked his reason for going on the roof. He replied that, his whiskers being so thick he went up there to let the wind blow through them and cool his face.

Major Renard is constantly improving his dirigible balloon, and he has now announced that he has invented a motor of 70 horse power weighing only 430 kilogrammes.

MERCURIAL

Mr. J. C. Jones, of Fulton, Ark., says of S.S.S. "About ten years ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison. Leading physicians prescribed medicine after medicine, which I took without any relief. I also tried mercurial and potash remedies, with unsuccessful results, but which brought on an attack of mercurial rheumatism that made my life one of agony. After suffering four years I gave up all remedies and commenced using S. S. S. After taking several bottles, I was entirely cured and able to resume work. S.S.S. is the greatest medicine for blood poisoning to-day on the market."

No Money Required of Responsible Parties to Commence Treatment

DOCTORS FRANCE AND OTTMAN,

Formerly of New York, now the Celebrated Examining Physicians of THE FRANCE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE, Columbus, Ohio, by request of many friends and patients, have decided to visit Toledo

Dr. France, Thursday, June 9.
Dr. Ottman, Saturday, June 18.

Consultation and Examination Free and Strictly Confidential in the Private Parlor of the Burnett House from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m., one day only.

The doctors describe the different diseases better than the sick can themselves. It is a wonderful gift for any one to possess. Their diagnostic powers have created wonders throughout the country.

The France Medical and Surgical Institute of Columbus, Ohio, is the only Medical Institute in the State incorporated with a Capital of $300,000.00.

FRANCE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL INSTITUTE,

38 & 40 W. Gay St., one block N. of State House, Columbus, O. Incorporated, 1886. Capital, $300,000.

DRS. FRANCE AND OTTMAN, of New York, the well known and successful Specialists in Chronic Diseases and Diseases of the Eye and Ear, on account of their large practice in Ohio, have established the FRANCE MEDICAL INSTITUTE, where all forms of Chronic, Nervous and Private Diseases will be successfully treated on the most Scientific principles. They are ably assisted by a full corps of eminent Physicians and Surgeons, each one being a well known specialist in his profession.

CANCER positively cured without pain or use of the knife, by a new method.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.—DR. FRANCE, after years of experience, has discovered the greatest cure known for all diseases peculiar to the sex. Female diseases positively cured by the new remedy, OLIVE BLOSSOM. The cure is effected by home treatment. Entirely harmless and easily applied. Consultation Free and Strictly Confidential. Correspondence promptly answered.

YOUNG MEN—Who have become victims of solitary vice, that dreadful and destructive habit, which annually sweeps to an untimely grave thousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, may call with confidence.

DRS. FRANCE AND OTTMAN, after years of experience, have discovered the greatest cure known for weakness in the back and limbs, involuntary discharges, impotency, general debility, nervousness, langor, confusion of ideas, palpitation of the heart, timidity, trembling, dimness of sight, or giddiness, diseases of the head, throat, nose, or skin, affections of the liver, lungs, stomach, or bowels—those terrible disorders arising from the solitary vice of youth—and secret practices, blighting their most radiant hopes or anticipations, rendering marriage impossible. Take one candid thought before it is too late. A week or month may place your case beyond the reach of hope. Our method of treatment will speedily and permanently cure the most obstinate case, and absolutely restore perfect manhood.

TO MIDDLE-AGED MEN.—There are many from the age of 30 to 60 who are troubled with frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight burning or smarting sensation, weakening the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examination of the urinary deposits, a ropy sediment will be found, or the color will be a thin or milkish hue. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is a second stage of seminal weakness. We will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

DISEASES OF WOMEN.—We have a special department, thoroughly organized, and devoted exclusively to the treatment of diseases of women. Every case consulting our specialists, whether by letter or in person, is given the most careful and considerate attention. Important cases (and we get few which have not baffled the skill of all the home physicians) have the benefit of a full council of skilled specialists. In treatment of diseases peculiar to females, our success has been marked, over two-thirds of our patients being ladies, old, young, married, single, in every section of the country. Our method is entirely free from objectionable features of the general practitioner, namely, "Local treatment." We seldom find it necessary. We prepare remedies, constitutional and local, as the case demands, and instruct ladies how to treat themselves.

MARRIAGE.—Married persons, or young men contemplating marriage, aware of physical weakness, loss of procreative powers, impotency, or any other disqualification, speedily restored.

PRIVATE DISEASES.—Blood Poison, Venereal Taint, Gleet, Stricture, Seminal Emissions, Loss of Sexual Power, Weakness of Sexual Organs, Want of Desire in Male or Female, whether from imprudent habits of youth or sexual habits of mature years, or any cause that debilitates the sexual functions, speedily and permanently cured. Consultation free and strictly confidential. Absolute cures guaranteed. Medicines sent free from observation to all parts of the United States.

EPILEPSY, OR FITS—Positively cured by a new and never-failing method. Testimonials furnished.

FREE EXAMINATION OF THE URINE.—Each person applying for medical treatment should send or bring from 2 to 4 ounces of urine (that passed first in the morning preferred), which will receive a careful chemical and microscopical examination, and if requested a written analysis will be given.

Persons ruined in health by unlearned pretenders, who keep trifling with them month after month, giving poisonous and injurious compounds, should apply immediately. Delays are dangerous.

WONDERFUL CURES Perfected in old cases which have been neglected or unskillfully treated. No experiments or failures. Parties treated by mail or express, but where possible, personal consultation is preferred. Curable cases guaranteed. No risks incurred.

Cases and correspondence confidential. Treatment sent C. O. D. to any part of U. S. List of 130 questions free. Address, with postage, DR. FRANCE, Nos. 38 and 40 W. Gay St., Columbus, O.

Inebriating Effects of Short Selling.

The Chicago Herald very graphically describes the effect upon the great Chicago plunger, of his enormous short sales, some of which are new to us. A job lot of conditions of mind are set out by the Herald, such as great inattention to business, wild appearance, incoherence of speech, and unsteadiness of gait. The average reader might suppose the little game cock had been drinking, but it is the load he is under. It affects some folks thus.

Minneapolis reports that country elevators in the northwest contain 2,794,500 bu. of wheat on Saturday, an increase of 390,500 bu.

The Markets To-Day.

The weather over the entire wheat belt except the Dakotas, where it is raining, is generally fair and warm. It is very delightful in this part of Ohio.

It is reported here that the Hatch bill has passed the house of representatives by a vote of 160 to 48.

We can hardly credit the report that such a bill has been passed after one hour's consideration.

The visible supply of wheat was decreased last week 1,538,000 bus. Corn increased 782,000 bus. Oats increased 806,000 bus.

There is no doubt, we suppose, about the alleged shortage in wheat and corn on the Chicago exchange, and we have as little doubt that if the weather this morning had proved unfavorable, that the two elements combined would have produced quite an excitement in that market. But the weather part of the program did not materialize and the short sellers were encouraged to return to their old methods, and it has been too much for the markets, and wheat, corn and oats have all broken down under it.

The weather had, very likely, the greatest effect on corn, but prices all along the line were lower. If one day of fair weather can produce such results, what will a week of it bring forth?

In New York June wheat closed 3-4c, and July 1c lower. June corn 3c and July 2 3-8c lower. June oats 1 1-8c lower.

In Chicago June and July wheat closed 1 3-8c lower. July corn 3 1-8c lower. July oats 1 3-8c lower.

In Toledo the trading in wheat has been fairly active at declining prices, almost without exception, from start to finish. On the basis of the July future, the opening deal was at a decline of 7-8c, and was increased at the close to 1 1-2c. June and August the same decline. On the call August sold at 88 1-8 to 87 7-8. After the call June sold at 92 3-4 and closed at 92 3-4; July sold at 89 7-8 and closed at 89 1-4; August sold at 87 3-4 and closed at 87 1-4.

Cash wheat was in good demand. Prices declined, but the east were steady buyers at the market. No. 2 soft sold at 94 and in L. S. at 94 1-2, and declined to 92 3-4, a loss of 1 1-2; No. 3 soft at 91; No. 4 soft at 88; rejected No. 1 at 88; smutty at 87.

Corn was cheaper: No. 2 soft 53 1-2; July, 51 5-8; No. 3 soft at 42 1-2; No. 4 at 48; No. 2 yellow at 54 1-2. Nothing in oats or rye.

New York, June 6.—Money easy at 1 1-2 per cent. Exchange steady; posted rates, 488@489; actual rates, 487@487 1-4 for 60 days, and 488@488 1-4 for demand.

Governments steady; currency, 6s, 106 b'd; 4s, coup, 117 b.d; extended 2s, registered, 100 bid.

Stocks were dull this morning. The sales to noon amounted to 120,121 shares. Under the lead of the coalers prices declined 1-8 to 1 1-2 per cent. by 11 o'clock. In the hour to noon New England became suddenly active and advanced from 38 to 39 1-8. The other stocks rallied slightly. At this writing the market is dull and generally fractionally lower than Saturday.

Flour strong with prices slightly higher; Minnesota extra, $2 60@4 90; city mill extra, 84 25@4 50 for West Indies; fine, $1 85@2 50; superfine, $2 35@3 00.

Wheat opened firm and 1-2c higher but soon weakened and declined 5-8c. Prices rallied 3-8c toward noon. No. 2. red winter 92 3-4c cash; 91 1-2c June; 92 5-8c July; 93 1-4c August.

Corn opened weak and continued weak throughout. Prices were off 3-4c by noon. No. 2 mixed 61c cash; 59 3-4c June; 51 1-8c July; 56 1-8c August.

Oats dull but steady; No. 2 mixed, cash, 38 1-2c; June, 38c; July, 38 1-4c; August, 37 3-4c.

Rye firm but quiet at 83@86c, car lots. Barley nominal.

THEY MEANT BUSINESS.

A Determined Mob Goes After a Man and Gets Him.

Grayson, Ky., June 6.—A mob of 150 men from Willard, Ky., came in by train at 1 o'clock this morning. The mob compelled the jailer to deliver the keys, and they then unlocked the cell door, securing August Porter, the wife murderer.

The men went back to Willard, saying they would hang Porter near the scene of the murder. He confessed that he killed his wife.

The mob was so quiet in their action that the authorities had no chance to protest. They hanged Porter on the second railroad bridge above Willard.

In sawmills using pneumatic pipes for taking away the sawdust it is found that the back of the saw usually throws up a good deal of fine dust in spite of the air suction. This difficulty has now been overcome in many instances by an invention for admitting air to the saw hopper in such a way as to cause it to impinge on the sides and teeth of the saw and thus give it an air-blast washing.

GROWS WORSE EACH HOUR

Late News from the Burning Oil.

Fully Two Hundred Were Killed.

The Dead and Dying are Found on All Sides—Reviewing the Loss.

Oil City, Pa., June 6.—An estimate made by a city official this morning places the loss of life in Oil City at 200. A report reached here this morning from Titusville that 198 bodies have been taken from the ruins at and near that place. Wire facilities between Oil City and Titusville are very meagre and the report lacks confirmation.

Not until the sun arose over the hills this morning did the people of Oil City realize fully the terrible havoc wrought by yestreday's flood and fire.

The intense excitement that followed the first shock when the big sea of oil and gas exploded, robbed even the coolest heads of their reason and no one could be found as late as 5 o'clock this morning who were able exen to approximate the amount of money loss in the city. Now, however, the excitement has somewhat subsided.

This morning desolation, suffering and death is found on every hand. The third ward of the city, so terribly swept by yesterday's flames, is one vast graveyard. The greatest damage is on Seneca street on the east side of Oil creek. There under the dying embers is spread a mass of shapeless corpses—but one house remains on Seneca street in the lower district. For three-quarters of a mile around there is not a single habitation standing. How or why this unpretentious frame dwelling was spared without even a scratch upon or in it, is an unexplained mystery.

The list of the dead now at the morgue at city hall is Edward Keating—employe of the Western New York and Pittsburg railroad. His clothing caught fire from the explosion. He ran to his home on Emerald street and dropped dead. H. W. Shaffer, Postal Telegraph operator, terribly burned. Unknown man, supposed to be ——— ——— Bristol, an agent from Rochester. Remains of a man supposed to be Wills Stewart, of Silverville. Daniel Sullivan, aged 40. James Holmes, aged 20. John S. Reinbold. Unidentified man, horribly burned. A body supposed to be Wm. Baker, book agent. Frank Watson, 14. Mrs. John Roach, aged 28, and one child. Mr. Roach was fatally burned in attempting their rescue. W. D. R. Terwilliger. Grant Terwilliger. E. V. R. Planke, Carthage, N. Y. Councilman Bartholomew, aged 55, his wife, aged 40 and son aged 14. Mrs. Edward Mills and her two children. James Rogers, aged 55. Ambrose F. Moran, aged 27.

Seventy-five persons are in the hospital at the First Presbyterian church, many of them fatally burned.

Only 29 bodies have been recovered. The fate of 200 excursionists who left Saturday morning for Canadohta lake is uncertain. There is no news from them and they are only 17 miles distant.

Nearly 300 Dead.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 6.—A Titusville dispatch just received says 290 bodies have been recovered in that city.

Hunting for the Dead.

Titusville, Pa., June 6.—The citizens of this city are yet dazed by the horrors with which they are surrounded. There are hundreds of willing hands searching for the missing bodies. Several days will be required to thoroughly search the mountains and debris. Up to 10 a. m., the following bodies have been recovered: Susan Bingenheimer, aged 42; Jacob Bingenheimer, aged 19; Katie Bingenheimer, aged 17; Lulu Bingenheimer, aged 13; Eddie Bingenheimer aged 11; Gertrude Bingenheimer, aged 7; Harry Bingenheimer, aged 7; Walter Bingenheimer, aged 3; Baby Bingenheimer, aged five days; William Eckert's child; Annie Furman (colored); Mrs. A. A large portion of Titusville and the entire Oil creek valley from its source at Canadohta lake, 16 miles above the city, is a waste of ruins.

At Riceville, nine miles bove this city, there is a dam across Oil creek. It was the breaking of this dam that caused the excessive height of water.

CHICAGO BOODLERS

Seven Aldermen Placed on Trial Before Juries.

Chicago, June 6.—The seven aldermen, Wm. J. O'Brien, Nicholas Cremer, Dan O'Brien, Patrick J. Gorman, John F. Dorman, Stephen M. Gavelin and Philip Jackson, indicted by the March grand jury for "boodling," were put on trial to-day.

A plea of not guilty was entered by all the defendants, and the work of getting a jury began without delay.

None of the indicted men seem greatly worried over the outcome of the trial; on the contrary, all of them express absolute confidence in their counsel and ultimate acquittal.

UNCLE SAM'S VAULTS INSECURE.

The report of the committee of experts says the whole system of vaults and safes wherein are stored the treasures of the government is defective. Vault No. 1 in the treasury building is absolutely valueless as a protection to its contents, says the Washington Post. Other vaults named in the report are also described as practically valueless. The commission recommends that with such immense value at stake, the government should immediately adopt throughout a system of the best modern vaults, with the most perfect locking arrangements. They urge the replacing of every vault in the treasury building with new ones. In rebuilding the vaults they should be so constructed that they can be at all times inspected from every side. The report says that the vaults in the subtreasury in New York are all safer than the vaults at Washington.

STYLISH WOMEN OF TOLEDO

What an Englishman Thinks of Our American Woman.

His Views are Correct in Some Respects—Where the English Women Excel—Out-Door Exercise a Good Thing to Build Up Strength—Just What Women Require.

"American ladies are certainly the most stylish, and, in some respects, the most attractive women in the world. Toledo women are as good examples of this as I have seen in any town where I have been. But they have not that stability and ruggedness that you see in the women of London and throughout England."

The above remark was made by an Englishman who has been spending a few days in town. It was intended to be half complimentary, perhaps half sarcastic, but it actually hit the real trouble of most American women. They are stylish, bright and attractive, but there is no denying the fact that they possess such delicate and high strung nerves that they are peculiarly susceptible to weakness and disease. They are subject to despondency and blue feelings because their nervous systems are more or less shattered, because they need and must have assistance.

Many women in this section realize that there has been a discovery made by a great scientist, an absolute relief and cure for just the trouble which afflicts the American women. The discovery referred to is Paine's celery compound. It is not a cheap specific, sarsaparilla or essence, but a grand discovery, which by reason of its great merits is to-day the most popular of all remedies.

Volumes could be written in the words of those who have spoken in its praise. Women everywhere find that it is a true food for the nerves and brain, for it gives strength and health and restores new life to the weary and despondent. The renewing and invigorating power of this Compound is marvellous, and to-day it is acknowledged by many women to be a grand friend that has invigorated their life and brought about happiness instead of misery.

Chicago.

Chicago, July 6.—With three or four outside boats seeking grain cargoes, any hope of advance was destroyed this morning. The corn market gave indications, however, of getting into line so that the corn stored here would be sold for shipment. Outlook was therefore materially improved.

Capt. Thomas G. Crosby, a leading spirit in marine underwriting for a score of years, died here this morning, of cancer in throat, very similar to Gen. Grant. He was senior member of Crosby, Macdonald & Co. and Crosby & Rardon.

Port Huron, June 6.—The steamer Colorado, bound up Lake Huron without a cargo, went ashore in last night's fog on Thunder Bay reef at North Point. She is on smooth rock.

One report says she is out four feet forward and another states that she is out two feet all around.

She is owned by Botsford & Company of this city. The wrecker Favorite is now on her way from Cheboygan to her.

Through the Straits.

Mackinaw, June 6.—Down—Dyer, 10:30 last night; Bonvoyage, 11; Edwards and consorts, 4; Westover, Bliss, 7:40; Fayette and consorts, 10.

WAY OFF COLOR.

The hue of health! Who can mistake it? The white brow, the deepened tint of the cheek, these associated with brightness and animation of the eye, a cheery expression of the countenance, are infallible indicia that the liver is performing its functions actively, and that consequently digestion and the bowels are undisturbed. If, however, the complexion and eyeballs have a saffron tint, or the face is drawn and void of sprightliness and animation, the biliary gland is almost certain to be out of order. Rectify the difficulty speedily, thoroughly, with the paramount anti-bilious specific, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which promptly remedies not only the above outward and visible signs of biliousness, but also the sick headaches, constipation, vertigo, fur upon the tongue, nausea, sour breath and pains through the right side which characterize it. The liver is always seriously involved in malaria, for which the Bitters is a sovereign specific. This medicine remedies with equal promptitude and completeness, kidney complaint, dyspepsia, rheumatism and nervousness.

Orchards generally grow too much wood. Vines, says Prof. Roberts, allowed to grow as they please, never produce any really fine fruit, but when we learned to control their growth the value of the fruit increased a hundred-fold, while the least possible amount of fertility was removed from the land. Is it not quite possible that fertility might be conserved and the quality of apples be greatly improved by reducing the length of the limbs upon which they grow?
